This appendix includes all of the documents produced during the engagement and study process for the French Market.

Round 1 Engagement Summary

- Vendor Meeting: Jan. 21, 6-8 PM
- Public Virtual Meeting: Feb. 25, 6-7 PM
- Culture Bearer Meeting: Feb. 11, 12-1 PM

Round 2 Engagement Summary

- Public Virtual Meeting: Feb. 25, 6-7 PM
- Public Survey: Feb. 25 - March 12

Round 3 Engagement Summary

Public Bathing Research Document

Bathrooms at the French Market

- Holding about plumbing, public toilets and showers

ADDENDUM: PUBLIC TOILETS AND SHOWERS

- Bathrooms at the French Market
- Research findings:
  1. Targeted public showers for the unsheltered (homeless).
  2. General public enjoyment of a fountain to provide families with a place to gather. A public fountain can be viewed in this short video outside Union Station (Denver, CO).
  3. Vendor kitchen needs: During long stretches of vending, it is a reasonable request for vendors to a) not eat at their stalls, and b) wash utensils and dishes in a kitchen space established by the FMC. An example of such a public fountain can be viewed in this short video.
  4. Public hygiene facilities in response to the growing communities of people who are homeless, living unsheltered, and/or people who are transitional. These “hygiene centers” range from simple shower facilities to “full-service” facilities with restroom, laundry machines, hygiene kits, clothing exchanges, and social and health services.

ENGAGEMENT SUMMARY

- ROUND 1 STAKEHOLDER
- Public Virtual Meeting: Jan. 21, 8-10 AM
- Vendor Meeting: Jan. 21, 6-8 PM

ROUND 2 STAKEHOLDER

- Public Virtual Meeting: Feb. 25, 6-7 PM
- Public Survey: Feb. 25 - March 12

ROUND 3 STAKEHOLDER

- Vendor Meeting: Jan. 21, 6-8 PM
- Public Virtual Meeting: Feb. 25, 6-7 PM
- Culture Bearer Meeting: Feb. 11, 12-1 PM

Stakeholders offered the following feedback after reviewing preliminary recommendations for each category:

Engagement Takeaways

- Equity and compassion should be the trademark of support provided to current and future vendors.
- The French Market Farmers and Flea market should be a pin on google maps.
- Provide better security and management of public nuisances such as “Uncle Sam” character.
- The current Non-Interference & Peaceful Environment policy should be revised. The current policy articulates benevolent intent rather than ensuring that vendors are protected.
- Vendor management software and apps work for younger vendors but older vendors should be able to access the same information by calling or talking to FMC staff in person.
- Consider changing the name of the flea market to “International Market.”
- Designate a specific area for local handmade crafts in the market, that is separate from other products so that vendors can hand-make their products.
- The French Market should be a space for artists to exhibit and sell their works.
- There was a lot of excitement around the proposed place-based improvements, especially at the restrooms, laundry machines, hygiene kits, clothing exchanges, and social and health services.
- How does licensing work for pop-up vendors?
- The pop-ups make space for hot new products and the programming for adults and children is very refreshing!
- The French Market Farmers and Flea market should be a pin on google maps.
- Consider changing the name of the flea market to “International Market.”
- Designate a specific area for local handmade crafts in the market, that is separate from other products so that vendors can hand-make their products.
- There was a lot of excitement around the proposed place-based improvements, especially at the restrooms, laundry machines, hygiene kits, clothing exchanges, and social and health services.
- How does licensing work for pop-up vendors?
- The pop-ups make space for hot new products and the programming for adults and children is very refreshing!
ROUND 1 STAKEHOLDER ENGAGEMENT SUMMARY

Vendor Meeting
Jan. 21, 8-10 AM

Public Virtual Meeting
Jan. 21, 6-8 PM

Culture Bearer Meeting
Feb. 11, 12-1 PM
TABLE OF CONTENTS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Process &amp; Overview</td>
<td>03</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vendor Meeting Results</td>
<td>04</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Public Meeting Results</td>
<td>11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Culture Bearer Meeting Results</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Engagement Timeline &amp; Summary</td>
<td>20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appendix</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Raw Data Results</td>
<td>21</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
The goals of the French Market Flea & Farmers Shed Study include:

- Envisioning a French Market that supports local culture bearers and advances the city’s cultural economy.
- Developing programming and operations that serves the local public and promotes sustainable tourism.
- Identifying short, medium, and long-term capital investments at French Market.

We initiated our process for this study with the review of past studies performed by Project for Public Spaces and pedestrian planning initiatives led by the City of New Orleans. In our analysis, we identified key insights from past work that are still relevant today and are working to build on those recommendations through current research and a stakeholder engagement process.

Stakeholder engagement is central to our process for this study. We have completed a first round of stakeholder engagement meetings with current French Market vendors, local culture bearers, and the general public in January and February of 2021. This first round of engagement included feedback that would inform the French Market’s evolving Culture and Mission. The following pages summarize how each meeting was facilitated, what questions were asked, and common themes that were heard from the various stakeholder groups that participated.
Approximately forty, current French Market vendors participated in engagement activities hosted under the French Market Flea shed on Thursday, January 21st. Our consultant team facilitated activities in the open-air flea market shed from 8:00 to 10:00 am, while active vendors awaited stall assignments and set up during their regular Thursday morning procedures. This time and location was chosen to engage vendors because it was the most convenient time and place for vendors since they already planned to be at the French Market during this time. COVID safety protocols were followed by all consultant team facilitators and participating vendors during this session.

Four stations were set up at this vendor engagement session. Vendors were invited to walk up to each station to participate. While some vendors were reserved, most vendors who were on site participated willingly and with enthusiasm. They seemed excited to share their insights based on their respective tenures as vendors at the French Market. Each of the four stations hosted different activities and questions as indicated below:

Station 1:
Where does your family come from? (Locate on a global/regional map)
Does the French Market celebrate the diversity of its vendors?

Station 2:
Who should the French Market serve?

Station 3:
How does the French Market add value to the French Quarter?
...to the City of New Orleans?

Station 4:
Surveys
Vendor Activities

Below is feedback documented at each of the four activity stations during the vendor engagement session:

Station 1: Where is your family from?

In order to highlight the diverse cultural backgrounds of the active French Market vendors, we asked vendors and tenants to place a sticker where they or their families were from. We provided a global map for vendors to indicate their nation of origin and a regional map for vendors to indicate which New Orleans neighborhood they grew up in or currently lived in. Highlighting the diversity of the French Market vendors allows the French Market Corporation to better understand the backgrounds and cultural histories of those who drive activity and commerce under the French Market sheds. The adjacent maps show where vendors placed their stickers on the respective maps.

Does the French Market celebrate the diversity of its vendors?

As a follow-up to identifying where vendors’ roots were from, we asked vendors to share if they felt the French market celebrates their diversity. They were given Yes, No, or Maybe as options and invited to elaborate on why. The results are shown in the bar graph to the right.

Most vendors felt the French Market did a good job celebrating the diversity of its vendor & local community and should continue to do so through a variety of festivals and food-centric events. Some vendors cited that the French Market used to do a better job of celebrating by hosting potlucks for vendors to share foods from their cultures of origin. Multiple vendors expressed a desire to start doing this again and some suggested that the French Market hold a monthly “International Day” and invite vendors and local artists to share their cultures through “music, food, and kids’ activities.” While a few vendors felt that celebrating cultural diversity is not the responsibility of the French Market, most vendors seemed to agree that local and international culture is central to the French Market’s identity and should be celebrated.
Station 2: Who should the French Market serve?

Vendors provided mixed responses to this question. Most vendors felt that the markets should serve primarily tourists but also serve locals. Some vendors felt that the French Market should serve “anyone with money to buy [their] product” while others believed the French Market should serve a reflection of the City: “…people of color, mainly vendors of all ethnicity and creating job opportunities for immigrants and people of color.” Some vendors felt that the French Market could reach a wider audience if they improved their marketing and advertising.

Station 3: How does the French Market add value to the French Quarter? …to the City of New Orleans?

Vendors described a variety of ways that the French Market serves the French Quarter including being a place for “shopping, diversity, unique experience, exotic appeal, and an opportunity for business education.” Many vendors focused on the economic impact of the French Market, citing that the French Market “gives opportunities to 300+ families” and is “a place to explore artists and give employment opportunities to local residents.” Vendors also described the French Market as an inclusive place “for people of all races, ethnicities, and colors.”

Vendors emphasized the historical and cultural value of the French Market as its main contributions to the City of New Orleans. Vendors noted that the French Market is “the oldest outdoor market in the city or country” and that it boasts the “most diverse group of people selling merchandise under one roof.” Vendors view the French Market as a place that continues to evolve and stay relevant, calling it a “historic adaptation for modern times.”

One vendor suggested that the French Market could add more value to the French Quarter and to New Orleans by demonstrating a bigger focus on sustainability and locally sourced products. They noted that many of the products sold there are imported from abroad and suggested “putting a cap on how much plastic each vendor can sell” to reduce waste and encourage recycling.

Station 4: Surveys

Surveys were distributed to vendors at the last station. Vendors were invited to fill out surveys and return them on site or take the surveys with them and return to FMC staff at their own convenience. The surveys included ranking and short-answer questions, and the same questions that were asked at the activity stations for vendors who were not able to participate on site. Some of the survey questions were specific to vendors while others were included in the general stakeholder surveys. The surveys were offered to vendors as hard copies and web-links, in English, Spanish, Urdu, and French to accommodate a variety of speakers. Only English surveys were returned to us. Summaries of the responses we received are on the following pages.
Vendor Surveys

1. How long have you been a vendor at the French Market?
From the responses received, the average tenure of participants at the French Market was a little over 23 years. The longest time someone responded was 73 years, with the shortest time being 3 months.

2. Do you feel supported by the French Market? If yes, how has the French Market supported you?

3. If yes, how has the French Market supported you?
Most responses highlighted the office staff, saying that they generally listen, are reliable advocates, and overall supportive. There weren’t any “No” responses.

4. Would you be interested in receiving business technical support at the French Market?
5. Would you be interested in helping to shape activities at the French Market?

![Bar chart showing responses to the question about interest in shaping activities at the French Market. The chart indicates that most respondents are interested, with a significant proportion of Strongly Agree being the highest category.]

6. Who should the French Market serve?

Responses were evenly split between tourists and locals. Participants also highlighted vendors and small businesses/artists as another group that the French Market should serve.

7. How does the French Market add value to the French Quarter/to New Orleans?

Most participants focused on the culture and history of the French Market as its greatest strength. Some participants also mentioned the added benefit of helping small businesses and vendors get started in the city.

8. I want the French Market to be a community commons, with social services and economic opportunities for all.

![Bar chart showing responses to the question about wanting the French Market to be a community commons. The chart indicates a strong agreement, with most respondents strongly agreeing with the statement.]

Why do you feel that way?

Not many vendors feel that they need social services at the French Market. Those that feel like it would be helpful cite economic growth, and providing adequate services and economic opportunities to all, including the homeless population. Vendors seem to feel that if you help the homeless population, it will benefit the market as a whole.
9. I want the French Market to be a place of commerce, with business incubator support for vendors and tenants.

Why do you feel that way?
Vendors think the French Market should be a place of commerce and it should support its vendors and tenants. Many vendors feel like they are all in this together and the better your neighbor does, the better you will do. However there were a few responses that feel like it should be more of a survival of the fittest mentality, and not prop up a struggling vendor, “that’s business baby.”

10. I feel welcome at the French Market.

Why do you feel that way?
Vendors feel like the French Market is a place to see friendly faces, however some indicated competition amongst vendors as a trait that makes them feel unwelcome. Others mentioned that despite the bureaucratic systems in place, other vendors and the office staff have proven to be supportive and helpful when needed.

11. I feel safe at the French Market.

Why do you feel that way?
All vendors responded between strongly agree, and somewhat agree. It seems that the vendors feel strength in numbers and that “the community atmosphere allows me to place trust in the vendors around me to cooperatively create a safe work environment.” Vendors cited that private security has had a positive impact on the market. Many vendors believe there needs to be more of a police presence around the market. Some vendors indicated the homeless population as a reason for feeling less than 100% safe.
12. I feel comfortable finding my way around the French Market.

Why do you feel that way?
Vendors feel that the layout of the French market is simple and easy to navigate claiming the market is small. Vendors noted that while it is easier for vendors to find their way around, it may not be as easy for tourists to find their way around.

13. I feel like I am getting a taste of authentic, local New Orleans flavor at the French Market.

Why do you feel that way?
Vendors feel that they are getting the local flavor of New Orleans, though some mention it not being consistent. “While there are many quality vendors here, Id love to see more variety and representation of smaller local artists.” There is a trend amongst vendors stating that local work seems to be over powered and out numbered by imported goods.

14. I get the opportunity to talk to local New Orleanians at the French Market.

Why do you feel that way?
All vendors feel that they talk to locals at the French market in some capacity. They note that there are always locals coming through to see what’s new and to commune with artists. Vendors love seeing the locals and some say that it makes their day to interact with them.
Public Meeting

Approximately fifty public stakeholders participated in a virtual meeting hosted through French Market’s Web-Ex platform on Thursday evening, January 21st, from 6:00 to 8:00 pm.

After brief introductions and overview of project goals, stakeholders were invited to participate in live polling to get an idea of where people were calling in from and how they engaged with the French Market. Results from this polling are shown below. Participants were then divided into small 7-10 person breakout rooms to participate in four interactive jamboard activities and small group discussion. The session concluded with small groups returning to the main room to debrief and share out key insights discussed in their breakout rooms.

Polling
Below are the results from the live polling at the meeting.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>What is your zip code?</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>70131</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>How often do you visiting the French Market?</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Daily</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Why do you go to the French Market?</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I work at/nearby the French Market.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I go for live entertainment &amp; special events.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I go to shop for arts &amp; crafts.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I go to relax &amp; people watch.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I go to eat prepared food.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I do not go to the French Market.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I go when I have visitors in town.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Breakout Rooms

In small groups, stakeholders discussed and wrote their feedback on virtual post-its in response to four questions in the breakout rooms. Common themes found in response to each of the four questions are summarized below:

What brings you to the French Market?
Many stakeholders shared that they typically visited the French Market sheds to bring out-of-town guests for shopping and to buy gifts for people. Participants highlighted local art, crafts, and the diversity of vendors as being a draw at the market sheds. Participants also mentioned special events and festivals have brought them to the French Market sheds in the past.

A common response from participating stakeholders was that at one time, fresh food and produce from the Farmer’s Market brought them there regularly, especially when they lived nearby in the French Quarter. It was acknowledged that fresh food and produce has not been offered at the French Market sheds for some time but that when it was an active offering, it drew many locals.

What would bring you to the French Market more often?
Participating stakeholders suggested a variety of ideas and strategies to boost participation at the French market. Many people want to see more local and unique products being sold, as well as regular programming and interactive activities for visitors. Some people suggested offering everyday services such as knife sharpening, home restoration, shoe repair, massages, and haircutting to draw more locals. Participants were excited about opportunities for educational programming and ways to engage youth such as storytelling corners, art, and activities that share knowledge about the French Market’s history and coastal connections to the river. Participants were also enthusiastic about the potential for night-time programming and pop-ups. However, there were security and noise concerns associated with this. Easy and free access to parking was mentioned and it was suggested that free parking be offered to New Orleans residents. Physical improvements like more bench seating and improved restrooms were also suggested.

A desire for more variety and less predictable programming through classes, demonstrations, and pop-ups was noted. People want to see a more diverse offering of performances and sponsored events such as concerts, dances, and local food fests.

Some participants expressed concern that without a strong, forward-thinking commitment to real change by the French Market Corporation, that a lot of this feedback would not go anywhere. There is concern that the amount of leadership turnover at the French Market would slow any progress down to a halt.
Who should the French Market serve?

Visitors, locals, young people, and local artists/businesses were the most mentioned groups who the French Market should serve.

Many people noted that tourists want to go where locals go for an authentic experience and therefore, the path to sustainable tourism starts with locals. Participants acknowledged that tourists tend to spend more money, so it is important to still cater to them as well.

There was consensus that the French Market should continue to support local artists and small businesses and create more opportunities to engage and serve young people.

How should the French Market add value to the French Quarter / to New Orleans?

Many participating stakeholders agreed that the French Market should highlight its history and that of New Orleans and the French Quarter. A range of educational opportunities were discussed to offer people of all ages to learn about the Market, New Orleans, the Mississippi River, and local BIPOC family histories. Some participants expressed a need for the French Market to acknowledge both positive and negative aspects of its history and suggested that perhaps “ceremonies could be held to honor and atone for these things.” Many see the French Market as an opportunity to expand how we define tourism in New Orleans beyond Bourbon Street, beads, and beignets.

There was an emphasis on the French Market being a local asset, where local artists and practitioners can incubate their businesses, where BIPOC practitioners can share their traditions and histories, and where residents and visitors can access useful products and services during the day and night.
Public Survey Results

Web-based survey links were shared with stakeholders at the end of the public virtual meeting as well as distributed to people who were not able to attend the meeting at that time. Surveys included ranking and short-answer questions to collect additional feedback from stakeholders as well as the same questions that were asked during the meeting so that anyone who did not participate could still provide feedback on the same topics. Below is a summary of survey results from the 18 that were returned.

1. I want the French Market to be a community commons, with social services and economic opportunities for all.

Why do you feel that way?
Most responses strongly agree or somewhat agree. Residents state that “the market has served the city for 300 years.” However, residents were hesitant to agree with the second half of the statement, questioning what social services are and if they provide opportunities to all, “not sure what you mean by community commons and social services for all.” There seems to be a disconnect between what the French market may be providing and what the community is receiving.

2. I want the French Market to be a place of commerce, with business incubator support for vendors and tenants.

Why do you feel that way?
Survey respondents overwhelming stated they strongly agreed yet found that it was not what it once was, “I agree that the market should be a place of commerce, but the mere act of setting up in the market is a business incubator. Historically, vendors would start in the French Market and move on to a shop in the Quarter, but as rents in the Quarter increased, it left vendors “stuck” in the market. We need more opportunities like the French Market.” Survey respondents want to be able to see various types of business get an opportunity in the French Market. Residents also believe that making the French Market a place of commerce and a business incubator would “improve the manner in which FMC interacts with vendor committee and vendors.” The community is asking for a stronger relationship between the FMC and the vendors and tenants. “I like the basic idea of the FM incubating business but I am unclear about what the business opportunities are there and what sort of support services the FM could provide. Perhaps a certain amount of space could be set aside for annual cohorts of new vendors who could be mentored to become more knowledgeable and business savvy.”
3. I feel welcome at the French Market.

Why do you feel that way?
This statement generated a mixed response from survey respondents. Most stated they strongly agree with the statement, while some questioned how you couldn't feel welcomed, “I cant imagine why I wouldn't be welcomed.” Others felt that the French Market is not meant for locals, “Mainly tourists are there and locals are not.” Vendors seem to feel that they are welcomed simply because they work there, “As a vendor, sure. But I wouldn't go as a local.” One resident of the French Quarter stated, “I am a resident of the French Quarter. The FQM feels like it is more focused on tourists.” It seems that while most feel welcomed to the French Market, many would say it is still geared towards tourists.

4. I feel safe at the French Market.

Why do you feel that way?
While most survey responses indicated that they strongly agree with the statement, citing the security presence in and around the French Market, some respondents disagree, noting a “lack of adequate security personnel. Aren’t enough available to come in timely manner.” Others feel like there is an unwelcome presence from the homeless population hanging around the French Market, noting that there are “always running into homeless, beggars, criminals.” It seems that there is tension between the markets vendors and the homeless population.

5. I feel comfortable finding my way around the French Market.

Why do you feel that way?
Respondents noted that it was generally easy to navigate but there is congestion where vendors set up, “It is generally a grid system, but sometimes vendors set up in a way where it can be tricky to get in and out of their area and hard to see across the market.” Some vendors noted a need for better signage for those visiting from out of town, “As locals we can but visitors may not - need better signage.” A need for safer wayfinding for pedestrians and bicyclists at intersections was also noted.
6. I feel like I am getting a taste of authentic, local New Orleans flavor at the French Market.

Why do you feel that way?
Responses to this statement ranged widely between agree and disagree. Those who somewhat agree with the statement tend to state that while some of the tenants and vendors are locals, they are often selling imported items from abroad, “I haven’t gone in ages, but remember it as always a little down-at-heel and seedy, which is typical New Orleans. The huge influx of tourists, of course, makes it hard to feel at home. “The French Market feels inauthentic - like a tourist trap”

7. I get the opportunity to talk to local New Orleanians at the French Market.

Why do you feel that way?
The most common response from respondents was “somewhat agree” but multiple responses seemed to describe an environment where it feels like there are mostly tourists. A few comments mentioned there being a lack of local vendors, and that it only feels like there are locals at the French Market during special events or performances.
•  Disagree, “Nothing but tourists.”
•  Somewhat agree, “Locals from city/state do not support market at pre-Katrina foot traffic and spending levels.”
•  Somewhat agree, “Not really a lot of New Orleans born and bred vendors”
•  Disagree, “It is not really a place I go for conversation. I have no idea where most of the vendors and patrons are from.”
•  Somewhat agree, “Only when special events happen do I feel like locals are there.”
A special meeting to engage more culture bearer stakeholders, whose voices were missing in the public meeting, was held virtually on February 11th, from 12:00 to 1:00pm. This meeting was attended by approximately 30 participants. Participants identified as culture bearers, artists, writers, advocates, and organizational representatives.

This meeting was conducted in the exact same format as the public meeting, with a condensed agenda to respect people’s time.

Polling
Below are the results from the live polling at the meeting.

What is your zip code?

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Zip Code</th>
<th>Participants</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>70117</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>70131</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>70119</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>70115</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>70130</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>70113</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>70128</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>70124</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>70122</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

How often do you go to the French Market?

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Frequency</th>
<th>Participants</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Monthly</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Annually</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Why do you go to the French Market?

- I pass by it during my commute home/to work.
- I go to relax & people watch.
- I go to eat prepared food.
- I go to shop for arts & crafts.
- I go for live entertainment & special events.
- I work at/nearby the French Market.
In small groups, culture bearer stakeholders discussed and wrote their feedback on virtual post-its in response to four questions in the breakout rooms. Common themes found in response to each of the four questions are summarized below:

What brings you to the French Market?
Participants commonly responded that they go to the French Market with their families and children. Some recall going to the French Market as children growing up in New Orleans. Participants highlighted special events, musical performances, shopping, and food as being the primary things that drew them to the market sheds. Many participants noted that they used to visit the French Market more often than they have within most recent years.

What would bring you to the French Market more often? If you are a culture bearer, what would allow you to share your skills and cultural experience at the French Market?
Many participants noted that they felt the current culture and goals of the French Market are vague and undefined. Participants want to see a culture at the French Market that better reflects New Orleans and centers African and Indigenous experiences. Culture Bearer stakeholders want to see more equity at the French Market, with paid opportunities for black and indigenous people of color to participate and shape the French Market’s identity. Many suggested educational opportunities through demonstrations and cultural events that share and teach about BIPOC traditions in an authentic, respectful way. There is a desire to create a safe, clean, and family friendly environment with child services, events, and activities at the French Market sheds.
Who should the French Market serve?
Participants recognized the economic need for tourists and other groups to be served by the French Market but felt that the presence of local New Orleanians is an essential missing group who need to be catered to better.

How should the French Market add value to the French Quarter / to New Orleans?
Participants reiterated the importance of highlighting the experience of ancestors who lived and worked at the Market historically as well as of those who currently work there. Participants also emphasized a desire to make the French Market feel more family friendly during the day and transition to be a riverfront destination in the evening. Participants described the French Market as an important economic asset to the French Quarter and the City of New Orleans and expressed a need for a cohesive vision that bolsters its identity as a local landmark.

Culture Bearer Survey Results
Web-based survey links were shared with stakeholders at the end of the culture bearer virtual meeting as well as distributed to people who were not able to attend the meeting at that time. Surveys included ranking and short-answer questions to collect additional feedback from stakeholders as well as the same questions that were asked during the meeting so that anyone who did not participate could still provide feedback on the same topics. Below is a summary of survey results from the 4 surveys that were returned.

1. I want the French Market to be a community commons, with social services and economic opportunities for all.

Why do you feel that way?
Most responses referenced the history of the Market and how this strategy could honor that.
2. I want the French Market to be a place of commerce, with business incubator support for vendors and tenants.

Why do you feel that way?
Again, participants referenced how the Market should honor its history and include aspects of both social services and commerce, so long as it is equitable, particularly in regards to race.

3. I feel welcome at the French Market.

Why do you feel that way?
Most people said they have lived or worked close by, so they feel welcome.

4. I feel safe at the French Market.

Why do you feel that way?
The responses were mixed. One person mentioned it feels safe because of its openness and amount of people. Another person said there should be more security.

5. I feel comfortable finding my way around the French Market.

Why do you feel that way?
Most participants were already familiar with the layout of the Market.
6. I feel like I am getting a taste of authentic, local New Orleans flavor at the French Market.

Why do you feel that way?
Participants felt like the French Market somewhat achieves this. The main problem participants had was defining what authentic New Orleans looked like. There were calls across the board to involve more locals and culturally native people through food and performances.

7. I get the opportunity to talk to local New Orleanians at the French Market.

Why do you feel that way?
Some participants say they have never experienced the Market as a gathering or speaking space. Others said that living or working nearby has allowed them to have good conversations with vendors.

Next Steps

Over 100 people participated in this first round of engagement. Thank you to everyone who has contributed to this work so far. This document summarizes feedback from the first round of stakeholder engagement and will be published on the French Market website and distributed directly to those who have participated thus far.

The next round of engagement is scheduled for late February and early March and will involve further brainstorming and prioritizing programming and operations at the French Market sheds. Documentation of feedback received in the second round will be shared publicly in the same format as this document. Each meeting will build on feedback collected from the previous meetings and culminate in a final recommendations document that will be issued in Spring 2021. Our final document will be shared publicly on French Market’s website and distributed directly to everyone who participates in the process.

Below is a timeline of our projected engagement process.
Does the French market celebrate the diversity of its vendors?

Yes, no, maybe
10, 1, 6

How should the French market celebrate the various cultures of New Orleans?

- If it's not broke don't fix it
- There are so many types of food and groovy music -- more of that. Invite people (from all walks of life) and put some pep in their step as they shop
- More special events. More openings for local artists
- Change is good
- Cooperation between vendors is good. Like a little city
- Right now, because of the pandemic, everyone is scared. We have been at FM for 22 years. I would like more celebrations for my muslim community during and after Ramadan
- Everything is already good
- Used to celebrate but no more. Every year, FM used to celebrate with potlucks before xmas with food from where everyone is from. Bring it back
- Local festivals like crab fest, food festivals, art festivals
- We should get together and find things that would benefit vendors and locals. It's not celebrated enough, pick a day each month and do an international day, and invite different cultures to share their heritage
- In this capacity using its assets (real estate, marketing) to promote culture bearers (artists, musicians, food culture) daily and through events promoting them city wide, nationally and internationally
- During carnival have a carnival day in the market for kids. Get Blanne Kerd involved and have a paper mache, undecorated float, set up in the market and have kids decorate it. And turn the market sheds into floats and throw beads from the market
- This is a day market (not night) need to bring families in. Bring in hs bands to play music on the corner. Set up billboards on canal pointing to FM - as oldest historic flea market
- Culturally its up to the vendors to celebrate their cultures. Have an international day and invite vendors and local artists to bring their cultures through music, food, kids activities and family fun days. (Roux carre fun day)
- Its an international market as much as it is a local market. A lot of vendors sell imports. Sustainability/green should be a bigger part of FM mission. Go from plastic to paper. Put a cap on how much plastic vendors can sell.
- People need to know about the international products sold at FM. We are here to celebrate diversity. We are here to sell products
- The way they have been with FQ fest and bringing people from different places, FM has been doing everything perfectly
- More security. Everything is good
- FM used to have vendors cook and bring food from their cultures for potlucks but now not so much. We would like to do that again.

Who should the French market serve?

- Local vendors
- Anyone with money to buy my product. Tourists!
- Serve New Orleans to tourists
- Everybody
- Tourists should feel comfortable here. Locals should feel proud to want to spend money when they do visit.
- FQ residents
- Very good. Tourists. Need covid to be over.
- People of color, namely vendors of all ethnicity and creating job opportunities for immigrants and people of color.
- Tourists, international and national. Residents of New Orleans, locals. State of Louisiana and around. Regional tourists drive tourists TX, Alabama, AR
- Tourists 70% local 30%
Appendix

- Everybody
- Totally tourists. More advertising. Billboards in the airport, in the hotels
- Everyone who is interested in culture. Business incubator
- Everybody. More advertising any you can get.
- 50/50 Tourists and locals
- New orleans is a bunch of cultures. Bring that out. More positivity.
- Not all tourists like it here. Get people to understand the real history. Learn about culture.
- More promotion
- Locals and tourists
- New orleans people
- Tourists
- Tourists
- New orleans
- Tourists and locals
- Tourists and locals

How does the french market add value to the city of new orleans?

- City- oldest outdoor market in the city or country. Most diverse group of people selling merchandise under one roof ive ever seen. Financially always operates w/ a surplus except during covid.
- It is an easy safe way for people to experience nola for both locals and tourists. It’s a great attraction.
- Rents and taxes paid. A place where local and artists can display and sell their merch. One stop shop for customers (as in christmas etc.)
- Historic adaptation for modern times. More draw for visitors.
- Tourism and taxes for the city
- Different types of nola goodies in one corner of town
- Hi im geno, used to work here loved the job, pay was good meeting people from around the world a new orleans historic spot. We need this place.
- Big time value. Make the french quarter and the city live.
- Brings culture, different personality, different syles, brings good experiences.
- Brings locals and tourists to the french quarter and the city.

How does the french market add value to the french quarter?

- Place where locals and tourists mingle, tourists learn so much from locals.
- We need everyday recruiting
- It provides opportunity for the artists of nola to make a living
- Supports local crafts people. Provides low cost vending opportunitys for locals
- Shopping destination. Place to explore artists. Give employment opportunity to local resident. Give and create jobs. Place of diversity equity-inclusive for people of all races-ethnicities and colors.
- Serves many different groups. Gives opportunities to 300+ families.
- Tourist spot. Economy goes up. Festivals and events come here. Brings lots of people because of the diversity of the products in the market.

Vendor surveys
Appendix

How long have you been a vendor at the French market?

• 3 Months
• 26+ Years
• 73 Years
• 20 Years
• Me- 6 months. Jon guillaume- 15 yrs
• 3 Months
• 10 Years
• 15 Years
• 25 Years
• 9 Years
• 30 Years
• 30
• 12 Years
• 35 Years

What languages do you speak?

• English
• English
• English
• English, spanish
• English, spanish
• English
• Indian
• English
• English, spanish
• English and tagalog
• Vietnamese and english
• Laotians, french, english
• Spanish
• Yes english
• English
• English

Do you feel supported by the French market?

Yes no maybe
14 0 2

If yes, how has the French market supported you?

• The office staff have been reliable advocates in helping start and secure our vending and success
• They get the job done, generally listen to you when there is a problem or conflict, and then get out of your way.
• Welcomed me with open arms and showed me around the market and quarter.
• Financial independence for my craft
• The office is more supportive than the corp office
• The current staff is a market improvement over previous ones
• Excellent and safe
• I work everyday for last 30 years
• I work everyday for last 12 years
• Renting spaces

If not, in what ways can the French market support you better (as a business / as an individual)?

• Outlaw plastic bags, limit plastics sold by vendors
• Procedures has been implemented
• N/a

Would you be interested in receiving business technical support at the French market?

Yes no maybe
6 3 6

Would you be interested in helping to shape activities at the French market?

Yes no maybe
9 3 3

Who should the French market serve?

• The local people and preservation of cultural centers in the French quarter; the unique experience of visitors to the city.
• The world
• Locals/tourists
• Mostly tourists. We should accept that this is a tourist market, that mostly tourists come here and that they spend the most money. We should not apologize for this, nor should we see it as a problem. There is nothing “sacred” about selling high priced local crafts. This is an international market and always has been
Appendix

• The french market should equally serve vendors, tourists and locals
• Small artists, the city
• The obvious
• Vendors, shoppers, staff
• Vendors and tourist
• Vendor and small buisness, tourists
• Vendor and tourists

How does the french market add value to the french quarter / to new orleans?

• As an opportunity for independent artists to promote their craft
• Its rich historical value
• Culture, background, connectivity, positivity
• It's been a destination and a vibrant international emporium since 1780 (not 1791). Lets keep it that way. It should not be a pricey, gentrified boutique.
• The french market brings local artists to tourists and locals; easily accessible
• Cultural and community, self sustainability
• French market is good for the vendors, tourists and small business
• The historical value will be lost if we don’t think of the long haul: being more thoughtful
• It draws locals and tourists
• Good
• French market is good for vendor and neighborhood area and tourists with small business
• French market is good for vendor and neighborhood area and tourists with small business
• Oldest market in the world

Why do you feel that way?

Strongly agree somewhat agree disagree
8                      4                           2

Why do you feel that way?

• Because i believe accessability to economic growth should be readily available to all people
• N/a
• Why not helpwhere you can, if you can <3
• It equals the playing field economically
• The homless live here!! We should feed them at night. Vendors should contribute to this dire need.
• It is a place of commerce - has been and should remain as such
• Good security

I want the french market to be a place of commerce, with business incubator support for vendors and tenants.

Strongly agree somewhat agree disagree
9                       4                        1

Why do you feel that way?

• I believe vendors just starting out should be nurtured to promote diversity and innovatoin
• We need it
• A place of commerce, period.
• That’s buisness baby
• Support is needed
• Put more focus on vendors and customers. More advertisement would be useful
• We’re in it together

I feel welcome at the french market.

Strongly agree somewhat agree disagree
9                  6                           0

Why do you feel that way?

• While navigating the bureaucratic systems of the market has been a challenge, many other vendors and office staff have been great support
• If you were here 13 years ago you would understand
• Theres a lot of competition amongst vendors;
sometimes it’s a bit too much
• I’ve been welcomed
• Often events here are half baked
• Friendly people
• Friendly

I feel safe at the french market.

Strongly agree  somewhat agree  disagree
9 6 0

Why do you feel that way?
• The community atmosphere allows me to place trust in the vendors around me to cooperatively create a safe work environment.
• We need more police presence and free parking
• When I had a problem and let them know, what the problem was, they didn’t do nothing about it! I had to defend myself!!
• Security police all are active
• Low security
• Our private security has been helpful to me
• Security is good
• Best friendly

I feel comfortable finding my way around the french market.

Strongly agree  somewhat agree  disagree
12 1 0

Why do you feel that way?
• The layout is symple and efficient
• Borned and raised here
• Easily navigable
• I do but do visitors?
• Its small
• Lots of people

I feel like i am getting a taste of authentic, local new orleans flavor at the french market.

Strongly agree  somewhat agree  disagree
9 4 0

Why do you feel that way?
• While there are many quality vendors here, I’d love to see more variety and representation of smaller local artists
• It’s not all the time
• Supports local artists.
• Local works are overwhelmed by disposable, imported goods
• Imports out number local works

I get the opportunity to talk to local new orleanians at the french market.

Strongly agree  somewhat agree  disagree
12 1 0

Why do you feel that way?
• I love that locals are always coming through to see what’s new and commune with artists.
• It makes my day with most locals
• I can’t be stopped
• Based on experience
• Meetings help
• Lacked people
The vendors at the French Market represent a diverse group of cultures and nationalities. Place a sticker on the map above to indicate where your family is from.

Where does your family come from?

Place a sticker on the map above to indicate where your family is from.
Appendix

Does the French Market celebrate the diversity of its vendors?
(Place a sticker in a box below to answer)

Yes
No
Maybe

How should the French Market celebrate the various cultures of New Orleans?

Who should the French Market serve?
How does the French Market add value to...

...the French Quarter?

- Place to shop and eat
- Place to explore local culture
- Place to experience local traditions
- Place to meet locals
- Place to learn about local history
- Place to experience local music and art
- Place to experience local cuisine
- Place to experience local festivals

...the City of New Orleans?

- Bring tourists
- Bring revenue
- Collect tax revenue
- Shopping destination
- Place where people can find diverse items
- A place where local artists can display and sell their work
- A place where locals can find unique items

- Serves many different groups
- Gives opportunities to buy local
- A place where locals can find unique items
- A place where tourists can experience local culture
- A place where locals can find unique items
- A place where tourists can experience local culture
Appendix

Public Virtual Jamboards

How should the french market add value to the french quarter/to new orleans?

• French market place was originally gallatin alley. Name was changed for worlds fair to erase history
• Uplifting the history of new orleans/french quarter and provide sparks for what they can become. (Can vendors incubate here and then evolve into permanent locations in the quarter/elsewhere?)
• It can be a driver in helping to expand the tourism image beyond bourbon, beads, beignets, etc...
• Yes! We need to shine light on the history of the area. My great-great grandmother grew flowers and fruit that were sold at the fmc.
• Market was built to sell and warehouse slaves. It was largest slave market in us.
• Perhaps tie-in the family histories (particularly of families of color) to fmc
• Quality of experience, not quantity
• Fmc had not has history of being respectful to its vendors. In fact the history with creatives is particularly poor. Marketing and publicity have not been consistent.
• Fmc could actually be a location where there ceremonies/sessions where the community gathers to discuss/atone for the “bad” parts of new orleans history.
• There could be spots throughout fmc where there’s a really well-done (perhaps audio-visual/interactive) “did you know” series of little-known facts about new orleans. This could be interesting for locals and tourists alike.
• Fmc perhaps could help tell/show the story of new orleans’ myriad artistic traditions - through live demonstrations, rotating workshops, etc.
• Music / cultural events that can benefit both tourists and locals
• It’s a tough question to answer. Thinking about it.
• Mission: create jobs and revenue for the region?

How does the fmc support that mission? Quality of life indicator.

• Providing useful services -- i.E., How circle market was before k; and the everyday items that attract you there regularly.
• Different market at different times of the day (i.E., Covid testing)
• It needs a rebrand to get local neighbors to return and explore. Offerings that cannot be found anywhere else. Use the numbers leslie shared - the local guys/gals are the most successful!
• The destination for art, food, music and shopping day and night
• The fq market can and should be a place where everyone wants to go like pike market in seattle. It should be a showcase for authentic new orleans culture bearers, food, and art.
• I like the historic marker/display idea
• It could make it a better place to live.
• Is there a plaque or something denoting the fm’s history? I think a historical marker with some info on it would add value, if there isn’t one already.
• As a french quarter resident, if the market were more robust, i would love to by groceries there.
• More activity at night would also make that area of the quarter safer
• Utilize the space from 7pm to midnight
• Provide an attractive space for local artists/vendors/musicians to make an income serving locals and tourists.
• Tourists knows that food anywhere around the quarter is often more expensive; therefore, i will continue to preach about the food stands and i mean food from all the culture that respresent our cities.
• Showcase more cultural events; have a staging area added.
• Nightime activity - art - music _ food
• Rotate food vendors
• Make it a place people actually want to spend time in (per nathan’s suggestion)
• It’s the oldest out door market in the country - it’s a historic landmark that should be recognized
Appendix

- Where if you only visited the fm on your trip, you would “get” new orleans.
- Be the “front door” to new orleans. Providing a full circle experience.
- Like a local market
- Honestly i’ve kind of given up on thinking of the fq as a neighborhood where people live because it’s so touristy. But it would add value to the neighborhood if it offered more to locals. I live a 5 minute walk away and i used to go when there was that vendor with the good bread and cheese, but now i never do anymore because i don’t find it interesting
- Use it as an opportunity to educate tourists about new orleans history, craft, art/music etc
- Could it have maker spaces where people could make crafts - both professionals but also tourists could give it a shot
- In a big glass box where you can see what’s going on
- Employ culture creators (musicians, artists)
- Can it become an incubator for pop-ups and start-ups that go on to become larger businesses and brands?
- Be the “front door” to new orleans. Providing a full circle experience.
- The french market is one of the oldest markets in the country should be promoted and there are vendors that do hand made products mixed in with other items
- It would be nice if we had more local produce at the f market - this is something that’s people have been asking for awhile
- You would get a lot of parents there (locals and tourists) if there was a splash pad (water fixture)
- I would love a farmers market there but i know they tried it and it failed b/c not enough people showed up
- Yes, totally, meet your friends at the splash pad, make new friends at the splash pad
- The fm can serve as a door to the city
- Feature a different country once a week
- The french market also contributes financially to the city. 2020 May be an exception, but they have contributed millions of dollars to city coffers.
- No use being hyper critical about products. Everyone’s taste is different. Is really up to the folks that run the market. Getting a stable leadership so they can get the concerts, programming
- A cohesive vision for the entire french market
- The french market has been doing its multicultural thing for 300 years. The colors on the sculpture in the parking lot represent many of the groups that contribute to the culture and the market.
- Share the stories of the people that are there.
- The french quarter is this amazing, world famous historic district - an enviable draw. The french market drags down our reputation because it is one of the worst “tourist trap/junk” parts of the french quarter. For the greater good - which a city should be about - emphasize quality over maximizing your rents.
- What is the packaging? For the whole thing
- French market is not a place, its a group of people that are diverse. They are new orleans.
- The main food options are the gumbo shop or places more upscale, it gives people an option to eat casually
- Think of the marigny and the bywater as neighborhoods that are closer to the end of the fm (mint)
- More food choices, dining choices, shopping variety
- If it works for the people who live and work in the quarter and around it should serve the tourists as well. They want authenticity
- Markets all over the world are exciting and vibrant, not the culture of this city
- People would wake up early to get to the market on saturdays to get the freshest produce
- People go to the markets they can drive to, not the ones that are crowded with tourists
- Would locals even want to drive to the market if its flushed with tourists?
- Transportation issues
- Historically the market was connected to the river, now there is a concrete wall
- Reengage people with the river, and have people linger, its a historic location that’s
- The market has such an interesting history and it’s not really highlighted currently - would be so cool if that was shared with the public attractively.
Appendix

• I think the main message is “make the french market a place that someone other than a tourist wants to come to”
• The vendors are international and cultured, but the food is less authentic, less curated
• New orleans has always been a port city and international goods are a huge part of our history.
• There is a huge opportunity. And, nola is a nighttime city . . . We know that the admin of this mayor took a trip to seattle and discussed the nighttime economy
• So, if the fmc could be nimble and pivot it would be a great project to launch especially since the frenchman street market is gone .
• And, it is more revenue
• I would love to see dutch alley turned into an artisan market.
• Totally agree with rhonda regarding using the fmc at night
• Need to run, thank you for listening.
• More people would drive away some of the bad actors
• A vibrant fmc would change the entire area
• A vibrant fmc would provide the opportunity to relieve some of the pressure on the fq and frenchmen
• Yes! The market is an experience

What brings you to the french market?

• I also like buying fresh produce, but i primarily look for organic produce.
• Tourists weren’t going to buy produce from fm. They would only take pictures
• I would still go to the farmers market if i lived close by.
• Occasional shopping. I used to go to the farmers market there
• Makes no sense to have where people who want produce cannot get to it. The farmers cannot park anywhere. Also farmers market in middle of day silly if you are a real farmer.
• I probably stop by a few times a year to browse/purchase products as gifts and simply to take in the atmosphere.
• No produce since fmc pulled out freezers before the worlds fair in 84.
• Merchandise from all over world that locals can buy and appreciate
• I used to go just to kill time on the weekend; i’d hop on the ferry from algiers.
• Organic smoothies
• Window shopping for handmade items and gift items that are new orleans-specific, bringing friends from out of town
• Access to customers i sell handcrafted jewelry
• Local artisans and craftspeople
• Farmers market would be more popular if it was more distinct. Where it used to be located, it got lost in the shuffle so not many people know it exists. If it were out in the open, it would feel more separate and draw people to it.
• Regular scheduled performances -
• Parking and shuttle access
• Define culture bearers - looking at the different types of authentic culture bearers like mardi gras indians, baby dolls and providing opportunities for paid performances.
• Grab and go fresh meals - for lunch or to prep for dinner
• Just to walk through and soak up atmosphere
• Supporting local vendors
• Items/food/experiences of interest to visitors to nola
• Unique handmade local products.
• Gift items
• Items for sale that will directly benefit the local producers/artisans
• Craft stalls
• Food vendors
• Fresh produce
• History of the trade of goods
• Handmade local gifts
• Locally made art/crafts
• I like to go for local food and candles, and to bring out of town visitors
• Crafts demonstrations
• Show visitors
• Nothing really. I occasionally go during the fr qtr fest to listen to music and pass through on a long dog walk. I did go when i lived in the quarter, but that's been a long time.
• Shopping. I also work there. During festivals, music and food.
Appendix

- I take visitors to the market and I enjoy doing some shopping there.
- It is also an interesting place to people watch.
- When visitors come to town. When my two kids want to do “be tourist in our own town”.
- Dave M.—I mainly used to go when I needed fruit for cocktails when I bartended at a nearby tavern. Now I mainly go for other reasons, such as grabbing lunch, etc.
- I bring visitors as well, generally I only shop when I have company.
- I've been involved with the French market flea market for the last 40 years. I sometimes go out of habit. Sometimes for no reason at all.
- I go there to see diversity. There is a range of vendors from different ethnicities.
- Live music/special events, I also walk through when I am in the quarter.
- I go to see live music at the mint.
- I have been there for 11 years.
- "More live music"
- I vend my handmade products in the market several days a month. I also go for live entertainment events.
- The fresh food is a good draw, but it doesn’t exist any more. And hasn’t for a while.
- A desire for fresh food - like vegetables, fresh fruit.
- I think most visitors would go for fresh food if there was a free parking option.
- It's usually an afterthought, to be honest.
- I rarely make a concerted effort to go to the French market, but because of its location sometimes I end up there.
- Like “oh it’s a beautiful day, and I'm in the quarter. I’ll check out the market”
- I usually don’t go there with people coming to town.
- Walking on royal street.
- Glitter box- local artisans making jewelry essential oils, clothes hand made items.
- Local art.
- Art that’s inclusive and represents New Orleans authentically (women people of color etc).
- Usually special events - live entertainment.

What would bring you to the French market more often?

- Night markets would need to spend on safety. Fm officers note enough. Nopd required.
- Fmc needs to provide better security for vendors to and from parking as well as provide safer, more economical parking.
- More local/specialty products; the mass produced items are not worth parking and walking in the market.
- More products made in New Orleans.
- Ditto on periodically having new vendors.
- Diy sessions on how to address issues in my historic home. That would be a helpful thing that would help a lot of locals.
- I agree with the need for additional safety at night markets, but it’s an intriguing idea.
- Live music. And more quality vendors (less touristy).
- Vendors will come and stay if they can make money. Treat vendors like the intelligent business people which they are knowing that there are going to be new vendors periodically — a lot of markets are always the same... You know what to expect, so it’s not as exciting to go often.
- Vendors informed festivals are to draw business. However vendors lose spaces to set up for the benefit of the festival set up.
- Less expensive parking.
- Local chefs’ demonstrations.
- Post-covid promoting the market or shopping locally. There are folk who were who have no idea it's there. Until refrigeration, and after slavery was outlawed, produce meat and seafood as well as dry goods were sold there. Consequently, everyone knew about it. Post-Katrina, not everyone who knew about the market returned to the city. Promotion of the market to the citizens has been scattershot at best. 40-50 Yrs ago one could purchase antiques and genuine oriental rugs.
- More local artists/entrepreneurs/chefs.
- If the ferry fee was lifted or reduced I’d go to the French quarter and French market more often.
- Delicious local food - both casual outdoor eating as well as items I could hold in my hand and munch on as I walk.
Appendix

• Collaborations with other existing markets — perhaps letting other markets “pop-up” on different days/weekends.
• Attract vendors who would sell items that people who live here would use
• If some type of arts/crafts class (such as fabric dyeing) were offered at the French market I’d go.
• I would definitely go to/support a night market
• We have lost majority of local farmers to both natural and economic disasters.
• I went to the tomato fest gala once, which was under the overhand. It was a great time and outdoors. More evening events like this could attract a wed. At the square type crowd bringing funding in post 5pm. Would need to be clean and safe.
• The festivals the FMC hold tend to run over the vendors
• More artisan crafts and less touristy items
• +1 for more evening/after work events.
• Rest rooms facilities who have to be improved and expanded. On a busy weekend day a vendor can spend up to a half hour seeking relief
• Locals need better parking access
• Performances by local jazz musicians
• Knife sharpening
• Services like key maker, shoe repair, tailor, china repair
• Massage therapists and other curated activities, including everyday services (cf. Asian markets)
• Would it be weird to have masseuses and such like you find in asian markets?
• If market was more food focused than trinkets. Especially local food, aimed at locals and not exclusively tourists. I would love something similar to Reading Terminal in Philadelphia
• Engage schools, teaching trades --animate with activities
• Experience the true New Orleans culture, that makes New Orleans great
• A monthly first Friday event; could have food vendors have a special or live music. Would be great to have fresh produce.
• Opportunities to learn about coast, wetlands, marine life on river
• Authenticity
• Culture bearers: who are they, do they sell, do they perform? Who pays them?
• Art to be shown, taught, shared; beading of mardi gras indians,
• If I were to go to the FM and it was not “bustling,” it would not have the same vibe.
• More places to sit, like benches (not tables and chairs). It can be tiring when visiting the market.
• More live entertainment in and right around the market.
• Always more and more fresh food.
• Once we are past the pandemic, more outdoor seating throughout the year with heaters in the winter and misters in the summer.
• I think of places like Findley Market in Cincinnati. Would love more vendors like that.
• Food carts
• More live music, later hours—generally when I make it to the area, most of the market has closed.
• I’ll add on to the greater variety of food.
• Music at night in the parking lot
• A more robust seafood market and more live entertainment/music, although that will be difficult because of the pandemic. More public speaking events,
• And to better parking.
• An art market
• Fewer tourists. Maybe some real antique stalls. I don’t think either thing will happen (well there are fewer tourists now, but that will pass with vaccinations). Julie
• More street food stand
• Food trucks
• Lesser traffic would draw more locals. Better parking. More food and variety
• Second more art and more seating, particularly towards the Mint/flea market. I’ve gone to see balcony shows at the Mint but the market is empty when they are done
• Use the street for art and music
• Try to attract more local people to better sustain the market.
• I don’t understand why we have never had a fish market with vendors throwing fish around like in Seattle or, was it San Francisco
• Like more street food stands. And also a really serious food market (fresh produce, fish, etc.).
• Changing food vendors
Appendix

• More music
• More art
• Live art
• I would love to see both sides across the street the market be completely filled with street food stands. Given our reputation with food already
• Street food
• Parking garage, build up. Where the lots are already
• More new orleans authenticity
• Security
• We are going to do all of the events, and regular outings and programming.
• It’s a government agency, the organization (not the people). The culture there is unable to pivot and move.
• More vendors selling products directed to locals
• Parking discounted if you shop
• Events and activities
• We need forward-thinking, nimble organization. Support by the citizens to help them with marketing, design, etc.
• Fresh food, fruits, vegetables, seafood
• More festivals
• The issue is the parking, it’s not free.
• Signage, similar to the cbd signage (ww2 this way, etc.)
• Caribbean festival in crescent park, perform in dutch alley on saturdays, new festivals
• If i liked its offerings better
• If it felt like it was locals and not just tourists
• Unique, artistic
• Also if there were more “cool” things to do
• Like mural exhibits, art walks, culturally appropriate programming
• Express their artwork, art walks
• Also if there were more “cool” things to do
• Like mural exhibits, art walks, culturally appropriate programming
• Transportation is an issue for people over there, a shuttle perhaps
• More musicians
• More authentic artists and musicians
• There is too much blank concrete between the flea market and nearest building. This is made worse by the fence around the old us mint. Could be redesigned with green infrastructure, tables, etc. To create a sense of place. Moveable elements can make way for festivals
• Make a more inviting space
• The us mint has a cold unwelcoming feeling due to the black gate
• With the current climate . . . More and more we are realizing that the fmc has focused on marketing to the visitor / tourism. . .Locals don’t really feel the pull to experience the french market. The overall feeling isn’t really authentic.
• And really connecting to the french quarter neighborhood. Services. Outreach. Better signage
• Parking
• Locals are looking for new orleans created items but stuff from overseas
• Fmc used to put on live entertainment obce a week and it was great
• Construction of parking garages on thei fm lots has been discussed off and on for 25 years.
• We have lost a lot of parking to the new streetscapes and bike lanes. These lots would not only be used during the day for the french market but also at night for frenchmen street.
• We miss the opportunity to use dutch alley on a regular basis. Tourists love to come to new orleans and be with the locals. The programming at the outdoor flea market could be more programmed - locals love festivals
• Dutch alley is a vastly underused resource.
• I agree. More signage and identifying the french market property . . . Yes. Folks come to my store and wonder if they are in the flea market. Or whre it is. Yes. Signage. Signage. Signage.
• There are a number of festivals at the jazz museum every year that carry over into the french market.
• For many years, i suggested “friday’s at the french market “ in dutch alley . . . Have a bank sponsor it . . . Hook up with hotels . . . Like the ylc at lafayette park. It just seems again . . . So much opportunity for strategic partnerships to create capacity and fun.
• Elysian fields
• The two lots on elysian fields
• The french market is underutilized after 5pm.
• The covered shed is not used after 5pm and makes a great space for live entertainment
Who should the french market serve?

- 75% Visitors, 25% locals
- Mostly locals - perhaps 70% - because i think knowing that “this is where the locals go” will still draw a decent amount of tourists.
- The houseless population was mentioned earlier — how can the market (and our public spaces more broadly) better serve this community during “off hours?”
- Local artists and culture bearers — specifically black and indigenous folks who contribute disproportionately to what new orleans “is”
- I purchase art right here in new orleans.
- The french market could be a great place to have a fashion show featuring local designers and local live music.
- We should also expand what tourist expect from their new orleans experience!
- 90% Of all art is purchased when people are traveling. Locals purchase art when they visit their friends out of town or when they have guests
- Everyone of course — but it would be great to have a place in the quarter that celebrated and centered residents more.
- The income of locals would also have to improve along with the economy. Folk who have to survive on minimum wage will not be our best/repeat customers
- There still may be a decent percentage of middle income black families, some of whom have children that might enjoy performances and outdoor installations that feature black culture.
- Locals, culture bearers.
- Young people! The market can be a key asset in cultivating the next generation of artists and makers.
- No! Loud music drowns out business
- As long as this is a tourism is the economic driver we need tourists who have the financial means.
- People who work in the french quarter and the surrounding area, including hospitality workers from restaurants and hotels who may find it useful to obtain services, fresh food, etc.
- I think it should serve locals and visitors
- It should serve everything new orleans (food, culture and music)
- If it markets to locals, fq residents and new orleanians, any tourists will like it
- As someone who lives farther from the quarter, to get me to come more when visitors aren’t in town, i would like a scheduled event/activity that is the start of spending an afternoon/evening in the quarter.
- Vendors, neighborhood residents, locals, visitors
- It should benefit local producers/makers/creatives
- People looking for a art, music, food and shopping experience
- Locals
- Primarily local people. It is important to know what they want in the market.
- Local job creation
- Tourists are important, too. Many tourists that visit new orleans want an authentic experience. The market should be a premiere place that offers that.
- Locals, of course, although it will draw tourists no matter what.
- Culture bearers
- Locals & tourists
- I think its possible to serve both locals and visitors if it was more ‘interactive’, more food/music/things to see, combined with more variety of vendors
- Would be really cool if you could get international food vendors, genuine stuff
- Broader representation of new orleans in its vendors.
- The vendors and the customers :d
- Tie in different cultures, people and backgrounds to cultivate a connection
- Speaking as a parent, having kid stuff at the french market would be great
- Like a real authentic version of epcot. Haha
- Something for everyone, but not everything for everyone
- I think it’s a good respresentation and “handful” of the people that are in the city
- Tourists are the bread and butter for the vendors. Pike place is a hand made market and that helps
- Under utilized time during on off hours, nighttime city.
- Sustainable tourism, you want to bring something back from new orleans? I don’t go to the french market with visitors for crafts.
• Coffee festival? Festivals make everyone have an uptick
• Most experts say that if you serve locals, tourists will also love it. But if you aim to serve tourists, locals will hate it and many tourists will consider it low-end tourism as well
• Handmade is not be sustainable.
• Dutch alley could be a great market, performance space, etc. Day time or night time.
• Events at night, but that includes staff
• I’d like to see if there could be sections in the market - places i could purchase certain items in a particular area
• The vendors and the customers :d
• Locals, tourists, artists and vendors, members of the cultural community
• Speaking as a parent, having kid stuff at the french market would be great
• Locals first
• Tourists - that’s the marketing culture and has been for many years.
• The market serves the locals by providing the opportunity to sell to tourists.
• In other words, vendors are locals.
• The locals - the vendors are 95% locals. And, the jobs provided at the fmc - taxes, etc. Are local
• Locals could provide the goods to sell and locals would then buy the goods year round
• I think the board can help by actually shopping and helping be ambassadors .
• A totally handmade market is not sustainable.
• If you have vendors making their own products, they need time to sell and also days off to create.
• Yeah you mentioned having only local products, i like that idea. Get rid of the low quality chinese wallets, sunglasses, etc.
• Yes. It would take awhile to tranistion. Using the unutilized flea market at night . . . You could start on friday and saturday and have a handcrafted only night market!

Virtual surveys

How should the french market add value to the french quarter/to new orleans?

• More handmade artisan goods opposed to cheap sunglasses, wallets, etc. Make it more of an art market and not a flea market.
• Bringing in artists from the surrounding area to be featured, maybe even from further outside the city, so we could experience them. I love the small business and food incubator idea, selling fresh produce, and would also love to see more (curated) second-hand vendors.
• The market contributes financially to the city every year. 2020 May be the exception, but existing operations have more than carried their weight for decades, if not centuries.
• Become a real market again.
• Through local outreach. More educational programs. Add authentic old school new orleans flavor. That is what visitors want to experience. Rare is a place in the french quarter these days doing that.
• Be a place that educates people about new orleans, has attractive offerings for a wide variety of locals and tourists, helps the local community especially the culture creators.
• It should be an anchor and a gateway to the quarter.
• Maintaining good balance of products/services to attract both continued out of town increase local support. Have clearly defined marketing plan with goals that are measured
• Provide a showcase for new orleans talent (music, art, artists etc)
• Validated parking. Delivery for fq residents. Need to advertise food options. Right now you only seem to advertise live entertainment so we dont think of f.M. For food or quality shopping
• Expand activity beyond usual market hours
• Economic driver while still having things to attract locals
• By mixing utility, culture and public service. E.G., Could it offer meeting facilities that could serve community civic needs and attract people to the fq who otherwise have few reasons to come down. For groups up to 50 or so it could be very appealing. As director of tulane’s bywater institute which as a river front facility by the convention center i can promise you there would be interest.
Appendix

• Authenticity
• Maintain authenticity. Show restraint on the t-shirt shops.

What brings you to the french market

• Work
• I like the local plants, local food, local candles, and international imports. I like the people watching, it is a great place to bring visitors.
• I vend there a few days a month and also enjoy live music events.
• Right now--virtually nothing, except for the occasional music performance.
• I buy clothes, jewelry, gifts, hard to find things, most of the food is great as i do eat there or grab food on the way home when in the quarter.
• Proximity
• I mostly walk through there when i'm walking around the fq where i live.
• Used to be able to get fresh produce
• Business. I am a vendor
• Usually only for special events
• Fresh fruit, vegetables and seafood - but recent visits have been unsuccessful
• Passing through on my way somewhere in the quarter
• I work in the french quarter and walk there for recreation or for a meal
• Shade on a hot day and looking for gift items
• Shopping, dining
• Honestly, i haven’t visited the market in quite awhile.

What would bring you to the french market more often?

• Nightlife
• A scheduled event geared more towards locals.
• A real market with a wide range of produce, fish, etc. At a reasonable price.

• A nice enclosed restaurant, authentically creole, more local culture, museum type places for educational purposes, later hours for some things.
• Wine shop.
• More appealing offerings
• Better design and a more new orleans focus.
• Fresh fish market
• More foot traffic. Covid control which isn’t under the control of anyone
• More local products, a real produce and seafood market, more nighttime events
• Fresh fruit, vegetables and seafood
• Live music, demonstrations, street vendors selling authentic local crafts, especially at night
• More local products or events
• (1) Better and cheaper parking. (2) More diverse offerings.
• Fresh market with produce & seafood.
• I used to adore the fresh fruits and vegetables. However, i understand if locals don’t support enough produce purchases, vendors can’t continue to show up only to provide ambiance.

Who should the french market serve?

• Locals
• Local creatives and small vendors, visitors seeking a small slice of new orleans in a welcoming and family-friendly space, and locals looking for that particular thing they generally get there.
• The market serves locals. The locals serve tourists.
• Locals.
• Locals and tourists
• Locals, tourists and vendors
• Locals and tourists.
• Locals would be nice
• The public and it’s tenants, both vendors and shop tenants
• Locals first - the sustainable tourism models. Exist for locals; tourists will follow
• The french quarter community and other locals.... And then the tourists will also follow
• Neighboring residents and tourists
• Everyone
• (1) The fq, treme and marigny/bywater communities and businesses (do any of them regularly shop for anything there?). Visitors
• Residents & visitors.
• Both residents, locals, artists, musicians and tourists. There’s enough room for all.

Virtual polls
Zip codes

- 43201
- 70115
- 70116
- 70116
- 70117
- 70117
- 70117
- 70118
- 70119
- 70119
- 70119
- 70122
- 70122
- 70130
- 70116
- 70115
- 70001
- 70116
- 70131
- 70118
- 70119
- 70117
- 70116
- 70118
- 70117
- 70114
- 70118
- 70130

How often do you go to the french market?

Daily

- 4 Times a week
- 1 -2 Times a month
- 6x year
- A few times a year
- A few times a year
- Annually, but more like a few times a year
- Before covid or since covid
- Annually
- About once a month
- Annually
- At least twice a week
- 2 Times/year
- 6xyear
- Annually (2-3 times)
- Few times a year
- Annually
- Lately only once a year
- Daily
- Daily
- Annual
- I go to the crescent park often, but virtually never to the fr mkt
- Probably a few times each year.
- Vend 2 to 3 days and sometimes visit with freinds
- Rarely
- I am a vendor that hasn't really returned due to the pandemic
- Twice a year
- Several times each year
- Monthly

Why do you go to the french market?

- I am also a vendor who has not returned.
- I used to go more often when the ferry was free.
- 5 Out 7 days a week at my booth
- To shop for arts and crafts and to eat
- I enjoy bringing friends from out of town
- Work & people watch
- Relax and watch people
- I go for live entertainment and special events
- Shop for arts & crafts
- Sunglasses!
• I work near by the fm
• Peple watch, arts/crafts, food.
• I almost never go. Sometimes go during fr qtr fest or walking my dog.
• I used to go primarily for arts and crafts in the flea market and maybe to get a snack.
• I live in the fq and walk by.
• I rarely go and it is usually when i have visitors from out of town
• I am a vendor of handmade products. Love live entertainment events also.
• Usually to take out of town visitors or shop with the african vendors.
• I sell my handcrafted jewelry when there
• Work at the french market
• I work in the quarter
• I used to go for fresh food - but it’s almost non-existant so gave up.
• Work there and go occasionally with friends
• Relax and people watch
• Shop
• Sometimes visit to purchase food or products.
• I never go there on purpose, but i end up there sometimes
• Work
• I go there for all those reasons. Mostly to sell art.
• Typically to bring visitors
• Shop. Eat. Special events. I take visitor’s there bc/ it is much a part of the new orleans experience . . .
• I am a vendor who has set up three days since the pandemic but i go at least twice a week to see what’s going on and to see what’s going on with the market and other vendors
• Arts & crafts, relax and watch people, to take photos
Appendix

Public virtual survey

I want the French Market to be a community commons, with social services and economic opportunities for all.

I want the French Market to be a place of commerce, with business incubator support for vendors and tenants.

I feel welcome at the French Market.

I feel safe at the French Market.

I feel comfortable finding my way around the French Market.

Count of I feel like I am getting a taste of authentic, local New Orleans flavor at the French Market.

I get the opportunity to talk to local New Orleanians at the French Market.
Appendix

Public virtual Jamboards
Appendix

Public virtual Jamboards

Who should the French Market serve?

How should the French Market add value to the French Quarter / to New Orleans?

What brings you to the French Market?

What would bring you to the French Market more often?

Who should the French Market serve?

How should the French Market add value to the French Quarter / to New Orleans?
Appendix

Public virtual Jamboards

Who should the French Market serve?

- Local businesses
- Tourists
- Residents
- Visitors

How should the French Market add value to the French Quarter / to New Orleans?

- A mix of local food vendors
- A mix of local businesses
- A mix of entertainment
- A mix of educational programs

What brings you to the French Market?

- Food
- Music
- Shopping
- Sightseeing

What would bring you to the French Market more often?

- More live music
- More food vendors
- More entertainment
- More educational programs

Who should the French Market serve?

- Tourists
- Residents
- Visitors
- Local businesses

How should the French Market add value to the French Quarter / to New Orleans?

- A mix of local food vendors
- A mix of local businesses
- A mix of entertainment
- A mix of educational programs
Appendix

Public virtual polls

How often do you visit the French Market?

- Daily
- Weekly
- Monthly
- Annually
- Never

Why do you go to the French Market?

- I work at / nearby the French Market.
- I pass by during my commute home / to work.
- I go for live entertainment and special events.
  - I go to shop for arts and crafts.
  - I go to relax and people watch.
  - I go to eat prepared food.
- I do not go to the French Market.
- I go when I have visitors in town.

What is your zipcode?

- 70131
- 70130
- 70122
- 70119
- 70118
- 70117
- 70116
- 70115
- 70114
- 70112
- 70001
- 43201
Appendix

Culture Bearers
Jamboards

What brings you to the french market?

- Events
- Organic locally sourced produce/seafood and or gluten free food. More events for kids and producing opportunities
- Arts/crafts, food, events
- There used to be a vegan crepe vendor and i’d go out of my way to go
- When my kids were young, for the scene
- The vendors during holiday shopping time
- Featuring local artists and culture bearers
- Festivals
- Events
- Wonderful food and fruit, somewhat interesting items for sale, ambiance and beauty of space
- Selecting high quality artists with original creations
- My org used to run kids & family “pop-up” events from 2014-2018
- What would bring more people would be an parking area for locals with a reasonable fee
- Yes to the artist in residence - they could be tasked with communicating with public, translating market themes
- Dr. Lisa: pre-covid - would come for food; she has a family member with a restaurant down there; would go for visits there on a saturday;
- Ethan: goes for special music events; would go as part of being in fq, riverfront; if in the quarter might just walk through rather than shopping
- Todd: it’s become more touristy; used to go there to listen to music; my family had done work as craftsmen in the area so there’s a lot of history; it used to feel more family oriented.
- Todd: life long resident of treme; part of the black men of labor group; work on the choice neighborhood initiative
- Dr. Lisa: brings family when they visit, esp. Grandchildren; rarely purchases items unless there’s a specific vendor recommended
- Ethan: would go see music if in the area; recently fm had been closed; trying not to do much if folks not wearing masks are around
- Todd: doesn’t feel as welcoming to locals as it used to
- Ethan: maccno exec dir; working on zoning; noise; relief funding; part of research on music in the french market
- Dr. Lisa: was going there for covid testing
- Todd: it has to be more everyone; locals are 365; fm is more open and could be used as a classroom
- Anne: works at noma; spent 24 years in higher ed; new orleans is adopted home ever since college
- Todd: uncle was a fruit peddler; he would go on sunday with his children to break up monotony of going to a show/park; would go for vendors and share history passed from great uncle
- Ethan: music at the mint on tues/thurs - typically more people adhering to soc. Dist.
- Todd: feels different than miami (near miami beach)where it feels more local and locals are coming out for the food/music
- Dr. Lisa: 7th ward - went to school in treme at mcdonogh 35; also worked on the choice neighborhood initiative
- Todd: now office isn't too far from the area; used to go with coworkers down decatur for lunch; but due to social distancing that hasn’t happened recently
- Dr. Lisa: the fm is a microcosm of new orleans; those of us who are natives: our culture capital is not being considered there;
- Dr. Lisa: went to 35 mcdonogh; we used to walk through that area everyday; if we could do that w/ high school students; they could know and feel and see the history and herstory there everyday
- We’ve now got bands playing music on every street; we’ve gotten to used to the repeated bands and it’s not as special as it used to be.
- Todd: recently went due to the danny barker festival; but wants to ensure safe social distancing and that isn’t always the case
- Anne: mostly goes when people are in town or visiting; if i happen to be in the quarter, would walk through; not necessarily purchasing items
- Fq has no where to go (grow further); treme folks have always build their cultures;
- Fm doesn’t embody all the culture
Appendix

• Todd: now it feels more like a tourist trap
• Maybe one week it’s the 9th ward; another week it’s the 7th ward; that way people could be drawn there based on neighborhoods; people repping high school and their community
• Visited as a kid - rick’s pancake house
• Comraderie brings me to the space. It is a gig or business space for culture-related individuals, and they hang out afterwards in envie or at someone’s house
• Post-pandemic, it feels different. It’s empty, and you can also see the development changes - gentrification periods of the fq and fm. It’s hard to pinpoint what the era is.
• I have friends that live in the fq and near the fm
• My friends - it was their dream to live in that area (frenchman), and they pulled me into this space.
• Continue to go back for events. It is not active everyday.
• Great to find people that i could crash with during events and floods, and whatever else i needed. When i couldn’t get home from work.
• I wasn’t accessing it much when i worked in the fq at the historic no collection. It was a missed opportunity for people to gather.
• Similar to brocato’s it has a mix of everyone, but the fm doesn’t have something that is familiar, nostalgic.
• The event with ashe is a real highlight: maafa - it has the potential to change the narrative for tourists and make it about the history and architecture. Charleston and savanna have figured this out well
• Organic locally sourced produce/ seafood and or gluten free food. More events for kids and producing opportunities
• Arts/ crafts, food, events
• Festivals, and days when i wander or bike through the quarter (fq fest, music, random festivals at the mint, events at woldberg / moon walk park)
• Shopping
• Cafe du monde with out of town guests
• Events and entertainment
• Things that you go to the market to get (some vendors carry things from african countries, some foods are very easy to get at the market.) They may be thought of as things that tourists might want but they are also very accessible when i lived in treme.
• Visiting nearby locations - riverfront, frenchmen street
• Walk through the market five days a week as part of a walk to the river.

What would bring you to the french market more often?

• It was a big treat as a child to go and get produce from the market. It was a reflection of new orleans and was made of locals and local goods. It should be a place to show a reflection of new orleans
• Its a market place
• As market offering a place for locals to sell their goods. Offering prime location to vendors of all kinds offering opportunity for greater exposure
• Becoming a must go to place to shop. Becoming a hub for parents to take their kids.
• Becoming as much a place to locals as for tourists.
• Added value would be expanding vending opportunities.
• Locals see it as a tourist destination less as a local destination.
• Adds value by having the opportunity of sharing more authentic flavors both in foods and arts/ commodities
• Families... In nola ... Who knew?
• More original work, not just the imported stuff on offer in the flea market.
• Bring in new audiences via pop-ups
• Playbill pop-ups in the past -- kids events
• We need to have conversations around families. How can fm be an educational hub?
• Fm used to look better; aesthetically we need to make it more presentable; there should be tax credits available for that;
• Doesn’t feel as welcoming to locals as it used to
• Schools used to use the fm and access it.
• The configuration and set up of fm needs to change
• Fm needs to be curated; right now it has any ticky tacky anything; it has no point of view: is it new orleans centric? Is it louisiana centric?
• Now it’s crowded, and if you’re chatting with a vendor you’re on top of another vendor.
• We need to be real about the fact that the cultural capital of native and indigenous people has been dismissed and denigrated and misused; for values that are held only by a few or those with power/money
• Economic equity!!!
• Everyone loves to have us (culture bearers) in these conversations; but how are we getting paid?
• Consultants are getting paid; i can only speak for the black men of labor (i can’t speak for the other tribes): let’s start with where is the budget? There’s no budget for us.
• The people who make the culture - we’re not included in the economic benefit.
• Recognition, money, respect for cultural capital/provided by culture bearers!
• We have perpetuated our history and culture in our own areas. Educationally. Fm would have to be much more about parade sites and also historical sites; it hadn’t been legislated by the council; it’s done spontaneously
• New orleans has stories and points of view - how are we sharing those?
• People come to new orleans for culture, cuisine and the music; not for broadway, the zoo, and the ballet; all other cities have that; what they don’t have: the culture we do.
• We understand our value; we know we could bring crowds: 44 sundays out of the year there’s a second line; those organizations have to pay to be on the street; pay for dress; band; police, etc.
• Fm of today vs the 80s; it’s now more trashy than it used to be
• Culturally, to bring the black men of labor down to the fm it would have to be a whole mind blowing event
• Why would we come to fm free and not get paid for what we are bringing? We know we can draw people from the fq and walk them all around the city and benefit our group.
• I am not sure what is in the fm.
• The financial opportunity for people in the city. Making money for our culture bearers is as important as roots and nostalgia.
• A coffee stand from a familiar brand. That hearkens back to the days of kaldi’s.
• Parking - people figured it out. Tourists did. Residents and working people had challenges. Som cities do a shuttle program for parking lots off-site.
• Bathrooms could be “happier” and there should be more of them.
• I love the new additions like cp
• I loved the farmer’s market - greens and cauliflower it was a bit cost prohibitive for people with snap
• Find out where people are congregating naturally and make it intentional!
• Wap is entertaining, but causes traffic.
• Areas to sit outside and grab a drink
• We don’t know how long it will be before we have our large scale festivals but the market could be a place for demonstrations (like they have at jazz fest) - a place that features and highlights local or regional arts demonstrations. The market could be a place that highlights artisans. I wonder what it could be like if there were consistent documentation of the activities (on youtube).
• Kids love the house floats. There’s a lot of real estate at fm - would be great to have a fenced in play thing or something where parents can hang out, have a drink, watch music, see cultural events and also have it be kid friendly (explicitly kid friendly programming).
• Cultural events: african drumming in congo square every sunday. If there were something unique to the market or a similar thing but on a different day. Connecting with an entity like june bug productions or ashe to see if there is a willingness to program something consistent (through partnership)
• Tekrema (possible partner) - school of dance and movement
• Cultural events
• Indigenous and traditional religions: people don’t know but seem to want to know how to conduct themselves at sites that are considered sacred (move this to previous question). For a lot of ppl, the river, congo square, etc. Is a sacred site...
• Live music in the market
• With my writing mentor & things that we’ve published. We also have kelly harris debeerry, who is a new orleanian and is on staff nationally with poets and writers. Does significant literary programming in the south. Could help feature nola writers.

• The mint, closeby has hosted a number of literary events. That might be a way to leverage the programming and helping fm be known nationally as a place that does this kind of literary programming.

• Indigenous and traditional religions: people don’t know but seem to want to know how to conduct themselves at sites that are considered sacred (move this to previous question)

• You have practitioners in african and indigenous religions. Proximity to river could be a place for cultural programming in indigenous traditions because you’re so close. That is something that draws ppl to new orleans. It would be very important that it’s not something that exploits but honors the traditions. Otherwise it would be better to not touch it at all than to do something that would offend ppl.

Who should the french market serve?

• All citizens of new orleans.
• Locals and tourists alike
• Residents and visitors
• More outreach to local and ethnic leaders
• Seize the pandemic moment by reclaiming it for locals
• During covid-19? Will things change afterwards?
• Techniques to attract locals during the pandemic ... Free parking?
• There are so many groups that need to be served - tourists, legacies of families, displacement of neighbors and families.
• Lack of understanding how people’s identities (locals) fit into the space. It seems like it’s for tourists.
• Side note - mardi gras indians is not a good blanket term.
• It should serve everyone, but we need to re realistic about who is actually in the area

Culture Bearers Surveys

How should the french market add value to the french quarter/new orleans?

• 1. Be family friendly 2. Be culturally relevant and honoring 3. Serve as a first and last stop for your hometown staycation or one-day vacation 4. Transition from daytime family venue to riverfront nightspot
• There should be more music other than the 2 places that currently exist
• Tells the story through the eyes of those who live and were born, but also their ancestors

What brings you to the french market?

• Walking for exercise and fresh air, shopping, eating, specialty or cultural items, nearby venues, entertaining out-of-town guests
• Shopping, networking, eating drinking & the music

What would bring you to the french market more often?

• Cultural experiences, events, shopping
• An opportunity to participate in a babydoll stroll, cleaner restrooms, & new / different product availability
• Free events, easy access and highlighted cultural events

Who should the french market serve?

• Neighborhood residents, local residents, and (eventually) tourists. People have always been regional day visitors. The french market could be an even more prominent safe, outdoor venue.
• Locals & tourist -kid friendly
• Everyone, with local support preferences
I want the French Market to be a community commons, with social services and economic opportunities for all.

I feel safe at the French Market.

I want the French Market to be a place of commerce, with business incubator support for vendors and tenants.

I feel like I am getting a taste of authentic, local New Orleans flavor at the French Market.

I get the opportunity to talk to local New Orleanians at the French Market.
Appendix

Culture Bearers Polls

How Often do you visit the French Market?

- Monthly

- Annually
Appendix

Culture Bearers
Virtual Jamboards

What brings you to the French Market?

What would bring you to the French Market more often?
If you are a culture bearer, what would allow you to share your skills and cultural experience at the French Market?

Who should the French Market serve?
Appendix

Culture Bearers Virtual Jamboards

What would bring you to the French Market more often?
If you are a culture bearer, what would allow you to share your skills and cultural experience at the French Market?

What brings you to the French Market?

Who should the French Market serve?
If you are a culture bearer, what would allow you to share your skills and cultural experience at the French Market?

Who should the French Market serve?
Appendix

The following pages are documentation of raw feedback results collected through activities, surveys, and polls in the first round of engagement meetings.

Vendor table sheets

Does the french market celebrate the diversity of its vendors?

Yes  no  maybe
10  1  6

How should the french market celebrate the various cultures of new orleans?

•If its not broke don’t fix it
•There are so many types of food and groovy music -- more of that. Invite people (from all walks of life) and put some pep in their step as they shop
•More special events. More openings for local artists
•Change is good
•Cooperation between vendors is good. Like a little city
•Right now, b/c of the pandemic, everyone is scared. We have been at fm for 22 years. I would like more celebrations for my muslim community during and after ramadan
•Everything is already good
•Used to celebrate but no more. Every year, fm used to celebrate w/ potlucks before xmas with food from where everyone is from. Bring it back
•Local festivals like crab fest, food festivals, art festivals
•We should get together and find things that would benefit vendors and locals. Its not celebrated enough, pick a day each month and do an international day, and invite different cultures to share their heritage
•In this capacity using its assets (real estate, marketing) to promote culture bearers (artists, musicians, food culture) daily and through events promoting them city wide, nationally and internationally
•During carnival have a carnival day in the market for kids. Get blanne kurd involved and have a paper mache, undecorated float, set up in the market and have kids decorate it. And turn the market sheds into floats and throw beads from the market
•This is a day market (not night) need to bring families in. Bring in hs bands to play music on the corner. Set up billboards on canal pointing to fm - as oldest historic flea market
•Culturally its up to the vendors to celebrate their cultures. Have an international day and invite vendors and local artists to bring their cultures through music, food, kids activities and family fun days. (Roux carre fun day
•Its an internationall market as much as it is a local market. A lot of vendors sell imports. Sustainability/ green should be a bigger part of fm mission. Go from plastic to paper. Put a cap on how much plastic vendors can sell.
•People need to know about the international products sold at fm. We arent here to celebrate diversity. We are here to sell products
•The way they have been with fq fest and bringing people from different places, fm has been doing everything perfectly
•More security. Everything is good
•Fm used to have vendors cook and bring food from their cultures for potlucks but now not so much. We would like to do that again.

Who should the french market serve?

•Local vendors
•Anyone with money to buy my product. Tourists!
•Serve new orleans to tourists
•Everybody
•Tourists should feel comfortable here. Locals should feel proud to want to spend money when they do visit.
•Fq residents
•Very good. Toursits. Need covid to be over.
•People of color, namley vendors of all ethnicity and creating job opportunities for imigrants and people of color.
Appendix

• Tourists, international and national. Residents of new orleans, locals. State of louisiana and around. Regional tourists drive tourists tx, alabama, ar
• Tourists 70% local 30%
• Everybody
• Totoally tourists. More advertising. Billboards in the airport, in the hotels
• Everyone who is interested in culture. Buisness incubator
• Everybody. More advertising any you can get.
• 50/50 Tourists and locals
• New orleans is a bunch of cultures. Bring that out. More positivity.
• Not all tourists like it here. Get people to understand the real history. Learn about culture.
• More promotion
• Locals and tourists
• New orleans people
• Tourists
• Tourists
• New orleans
• Tourists and locals
• Tourists and locals

How does the french market add value to the city of new orleans

• City- oldest outdoor market in the city or country. Most diverse group of people selling merchandise under one roof ive ever seen. Financially always operates w/ a surplus except during covid.
• It is an easy safe way for people to experience nola for both locals and tourists. It’s a great attraction.
• Rents and taxes paid. A place where local and artists can display and sell their merch. One stop shop for customers (as in christmas etc.)
• Historic adaptation for modern times. More draw for visitors.
• Tourism and taxes for the city
• Different types of nola goodies in one corner of town
• Hi im geno, used to work here loved the job, pay was good meeting people from around the world a new orleans historic spot. We need this place.
• Big time value. Make the french quarter and the city live.
• Brings culture, different personality, different syles, brings good experiences.
• Brings locals and tourists to the french quarter and the city.

How does the french market add value to the fench quarter?

• Shopping diversity, unique experience. Exotic appeal. Opportunity to buisness education.
• Place where locals and tourists mingle, tourists lear so much from locals.
• We need everyday recruiting
• It provides opportunity for the artists of nola to make a living
• Supports local crafts people. Provides low cost vending opportunitys for locals
• Shopping destination. Place to explore artists. Give employment opportunity to local resident. Give and create jobs. Place of diversity equity-inclusive for people of all races-ethnicities and colors.
• Serves many different groups. Gives opportunities to 300+ families.
• Tourist spot. Economy goes up. Festivals and events come here. Brings lots of people because of the diversisty of the products in the market.
Appendix

Where does your family come from?

The vendors at the French Market represent a diverse group of cultures and nationalities. Place a sticker on the map above to indicate where your family is from.

Where does your family come from?

Place a sticker on the map above to indicate where your family is from.
Appendix

Does the French Market celebrate the diversity of its vendors? (Place a sticker in a box below to answer)

- Yes
- No
- Maybe

How should the French Market celebrate the various cultures of New Orleans?

Who should the French Market serve?

- Locals + Tourists
- New Orleans people
- Tourists
- Locals
- NEW ORLEANS
- Tourists + Locals
How does the French Market add value to...

...the French Quarter?

- Shopping Destination
- Unique atmosphere
- Drive Local economy
- Job creation
- Place of diversity - for people of all races, ethnicities and ages.

...the City of New Orleans?

- Bring tourists
- Bring revenue
- Collect Tax Revenue
- Shopping Destination
- Place to celebrate, happen to find diverse items

- People's Taxes paid

A place where local artists can display and sell their work.
One stop shop for customers (as in Christmas time)
Appendix

Vendor Survey Responses

How long have you been a vendor at the French market?

- 3 Months
- 26+ Years
- 73 Years
- 20 Years
- Me- 6 months. Jon guillaume- 15 yrs
- 3 Months
- 10 Years
- 15 Years
- 25 Years
- 9 Years
- 30 Years
- 30
- 12 Years
- 35 Years

What languages do you speak?

- English
- English
- English
- English, spanish
- English, spanish
- English
- Indian
- English
- English, spanish
- English and tagalog
- Vietnamese and english
- Laotians, french, english
- Spanish
- Yes english
- English
- English

Do you feel supported by the French market?

Yes  no  maybe
14  0  2

If yes, how has the French market supported you?

- The office staff have been reliable advocates in helping start and secure our vending and success
- They get the job done, generally listen to you when there is a problem or conflict, and then get out of your way.
- Welcomed me with open arms and showed me around the market and quarter.
- Financial independence for my craft
- The office is more supportive than the corp office
- The current staff is a market improvement over previous ones
- Excellent and safe
- I work everyday for last 30 years
- I work everyday for last 12 years
- Renting spaces

If not, in what ways can the French market support you better (as a business / as an individual)?

- Outlaw plastic bags, limit plastics sold by vendors
- Procedures has been implemented
- N/a

Would you be interested in receiving business technical support at the French market?

Yes  no  maybe
6  3  6

Would you be interested in helping to shape activities at the French market?

Yes  no  maybe
9  3  3

Who should the French market serve?

- The local people and preservation of cultural centers in the French quarter; the unique experience of visitors to the city.
- The world
- Locals/tourists
- Mostly tourists. We should accept that this is a tourist market, that mostly tourists come here and that they spend the most money. We should not apologize for this, nor should we see it as a problem. There is nothing “sacred” about selling high priced local crafts. This is an international market and always has been
Appendix

• The french market should equally serve vendors, tourists and locals
• Small artists, the city
• The obvious
• Vendors, shoppers, staff
• Vendors and tourist
• Vendor and small buisness, tourists
• Vendor and tourists

How does the french market add value to the french quarter / to new orleans?

• As an opportunity for independent artists to promote their craft
• Its rich historical value
• Culture, background, connectivity, positivity
• Its been a destination and a vibrant international emporium since 1780 (not 1791). Lets keep it that way. It should not be a pricey, gentrified boutique.
• The french market brings local artists to tourists and locals; easily accessible
• Cultural and community, self sustainability
• French market is good for the vendors, tourists and small business
• The historical value will be lost if we don’t think of the long haul: being more thoughtful
• It draws locals and tourists
• Good
• French market is good for vendor and neighborhood area and tourists with small business
• French market is good for vendor and neighborhood area and tourists with small business
• Oldest market in the world

I want the french market to be a community commons, with social services and economic opportunities for all.

Strongly agree somewhat agree disagree
8 4 2

Why do you feel that way?

• Because i believe accessibility to economic growth should be readily available to all people
• N/a
• Why not help where you can, if you can <3
• It equals the playing field economically
• The homeless live here!! We should feed them at night. Vendors should contribute to this dire need.
• It is a place of commerce - has been and should remain as such
• Good security

I want the french market to be a place of commerce, with business incubator support for vendors and tenants.

Strongly agree somewhat agree disagree
9 4 1

Why do you feel that way?

• I believe vendors just starting out should be nurtured to promote diversity and innovation
• We need it
• A place of commerce, period.
• That’s business baby
• Support is needed
• Put more focus on vendors and customers. More advertisement would be useful
• We’re in it together

I feel welcome at the french market.

Strongly agree somewhat agree disagree
9 6 0

Why do you feel that way?

• While navigating the bureaucratic systems of the market has been a challenge, many other vendors and office staff have been great support
Appendix

• If you were here 13 years ago you would understand
• There's a lot of competition amongst vendors; sometimes it's a bit too much
• I've been welcomed
• Often events here are half baked
• Friendly people
• Friendly

I feel safe at the french market.

Strongly agree  somewhat agree  disagree
9 6 0

Why do you feel that way?

• The community atmosphere allows me to place trust in the vendors around me to cooperatively create a safe work environment.
• We need more police presence and free parking
• When I had a problem and let them know, what the problem was, they didn't do nothing about it! I had to defend myself!!
• Security police all are active
• Low security
• Our private security has been helpful to me
• Security is good
• Best friendly

I feel comfortable finding my way around the french market.

Strongly agree  somewhat agree  disagree
12 1 0

Why do you feel that way?

• The layout is symple and efficient
• Borned and raised here
• Easily navigable
• I do but do visitors?
• Its small
• Lots of people

I feel like i am getting a taste of authentic, local new orleans flavor at the french market.

Strongly agree  somewhat agree  disagree
9 4 0

Why do you feel that way?

• While there are many quality vendors here, id love to see more variety and representation of smaller local artists
• Its not all the time
• Supports local artists.
• Local works are overwhelmed by disposable, imported goods
• Imports out number local works

I get the opportunity to talk to local new orleanians at the french market.

Strongly agree  somewhat agree  disagree
12 1 0

Why do you feel that way?

• I love that locals are always coming through to see whats new and commune with artists.
• It makes my day with most locals
• I cant be stopped
• Based on experience
• Meetings help
• Lacked people
Appendix

Public Jamboards (Virtual Activities)

How should the french market add value to the french quarter/to new orleans?

- French market place was originally gallatin alley. Name was changed for worlds fair to erase history
- Uplifting the history of new orleans/french quarter and provide sparks for what they can become. (Can vendors incubate here and then evolve into permanent locations in the quarter/elsewhere?)
- It can be a driver in helping to expand the tourism image beyond bourbon, beads, beignets, etc...
- Yes! We need to shine light on the history of the area. My great-great grandmother grew flowers and fruit that were sold at the fmc.
- Market was built to sell and warehouse slaves. It was largest slave market in us.
- Perhaps tie-in the family histories (particularly of families of color) to fmc
- Quality of experience, not quantity
- Fmc had not has history of being respectful to its vendors. In fact the history with creatives is particularly poor. Marketing and publicity have not been consistent.
- Fmc could actually be a location where there ceremonies/sessions where the community gathers to discuss/atone for the “bad” parts of new orleans history.
- There could be spots throughout fmc where there’s a really well-done (perhaps audio-visual/interactive) “did you know” series of little-known facts about new orleans. This could be interesting for locals and tourists alike.
- Fmc perhaps could help tell/show the story of new orleans’ myriad artistic traditions - through live demonstrations, rotating workshops, etc.
- Music / cultural events that can benefit both tourists and locals
- It’s a tough question to answer. Thinking about it.
- Mission: create jobs and revenue for the region? How does the fmc support that mission? Quality of life indicator.
- Providing useful services -- i.E., How circle market was before k; and the everyday items that attract you there regularly.
- Different market at different times of the day (i.E., Covid testing)
- It needs a rebrand to get local neighbors to return and explore. Offerings that cannot be found anywhere else. Use the numbers leslie shared - the local guys/gals are the most successful!
- The destination for art, food, music and shopping day and night
- The fq market can and should be a place where everyone wants to go like pike market in seattle. It should be a showcase for authentic new orleans culture bearers, food, and art.
- I like the historic marker/display idea
- It could make it a better place to live.
- Is there a plaque or something denoting the fm's history? I think a historical marker with some info on it would add value, if there isn't one already.
- As a french quarter resident, if the market were more robust, i would love to by groceries there.
- More activity at night would also make that area of the quarter safer
- Utilize the space from 7pm to midnight
- Provide an attractive space for local artists/vendors/musicians to make an income serving locals and tourists.
- Tourists knows that food anywhere around the quarter is often more expensive; therefore, i will continue to preach about the food stands and i mean food from all the culture that respresent our cities.
- Showcase more cultural events; have a staging area added.
- Nightime activity - art - music _ food
- Rotate food vendors
- Make it a place people actually want to spend time in (per nathan’s suggestion)
- It’s the oldest out door market in the country - it’s a historic landmark that should be recognized
- Where if you only visited the fm on your trip, you
would “get” new orleans.
• Be the “front door” to new orleans. Providing a full circle experience.
• Like a local market
• Honestly i’ve kind of given up on thinking of the fq as a neighborhood where people live because it’s so touristy. But it would add value to the neighborhood if it offered more to locals. I live a 5 minute walk away and i used to go when there was that vendor with the good bread and cheese, but now i never do anymore because i don’t find it interesting
• Use it as an opportunity to educate tourists about new orleans history, craft, art/music etc
• Could it have maker spaces where people could make crafts - both professionals but also tourists could give it a shot
• In a big glass box where you can see what’s going on
• Employ culture creators (musicians, artists)
• Can it become an incubator for pop-ups and start-ups that go on to become larger businesses and brands?
• Be the “front door” to new orleans. Providing a full circle experience.
• The french market is one of the oldest markets in the country should be promoted and there are vendors that do handmade products mixed in with other items
• It would be nice if we had more local produce at the f market - this is something that’s people have been asking for awhile
• You would get a lot of parents there (locals and tourists) if there was a splash pad (water fixture)
• I would love a farmers market there but i know they tried it and it failed b/c not enough people showed up
• Yes, totally, meet your friends at the splash pad, make new friends at the splash pad
• The fm can serve as a door to the city
• Feature a different country once a week
• The french market also contributes financially to the city. 2020 May be an exception, but they have contributed millions of dollars to city coffers.
• No use being hyper critical about products. Everyone’s taste is different. Is really up to the folks that run the market. Getting a stable leadership so they can get the concerts, programming
• A cohesive vision for the entire french market
• The french market has been doing its multicultural thing for 300 years. The colors on the sculpture in the parking lot represent many of the groups that contribute to the culture and the market.
• Share the stories of the people that are there.
• The french quarter is this amazing, world famous historic district - an enviable draw. The french market drags down our reputation because it is one of the worst “tourist trap/junk” parts of the french quarter. For the greater good - which a city should be about - emphasize quality over maximizing your rents.
• What is the packaging? For the whole thing
• French market is not a place, its a group of people that are diverse. They are new orleans.
• The main food options are the gumbo shop or places more upscale, it gives people an option to eat casually
• Markets all over the world are exciting and vibrant, not the culture of this city
• People would wake up early to get to the market on saturdays to get the freshest produce
• People go to the markets they can drive to, not the ones that are crowded with tourists
• Would locals even want to drive to the market if its flushed with tourists?
• Transportation issues
• Historically the market was connected to the river, now there is a concrete wall
• Reengage people with the river, and have people linger, its a historic location that’s
• The market has such an interesting history and it’s not really highlighted currently - would be so cool if that was shared with the public attractively.
• I think the main message is “make the french market a place that someone other than a tourist wants to come to”

- The vendors are international and cultured, but the food is less authentic, less curated
- New orleans has always been a port city and international goods are a huge part of our history.
- There is a huge opportunity. And, nola is a nighttime city . . . We know that the admin of this mayor took a trip to seattle and discussed the nighttime economy
- So, if the fmc could be nimble and pivot it would be a great project to launch especially since the frenchman street market is gone .
- And, it is more revenue
- I would love to see dutch alley turned into an artisan market.
- Totally agree with rhonda regarding using the fmc at night
- Need to run, thank you for listening.
- More people would drive away some of the bad actors
- A vibrant fmc would change the entire area
- A vibrant fmc would provide the opportunity to relieve some of the pressure on the fq and frenchmen
- Yes! The market is an experience

What brings you to the french market?

- I also like buying fresh produce, but i primarily look for organic produce.
- Tourists weren’t going to buy produce from fm. They would only take pictures
- I would still go to the farmers market if i lived close by.
- Occasional shopping. I used to go to the farmers market there
- Makes no sense to have where people who want produce cannot get to it. The farmers cannot park anywhere. Also farmers market in middle of day silly if you are a real farmer.
- I probably stop by a few times a year to browse/ purchase products as gifts and simply to take in the atmosphere.
- No produce since fmc pulled out freezers before the worlds fair in 84.
- Merchandise from all over world that locals can buy and appreciate
- I used to go just to kill time on the weekend; i’d hop on the ferry from algiers.
- Organic smoothies
- Window shopping for handmade items and gift items that are new orleans-specific, bringing friends from out of town
- Access to customers i sell handcrafted jewelry
- Local artisans and craftspeople
- Farmers market would be more popular if it was more distinct. Where it used to be located, it got lost in the shuffle so not many people know it exists. If it were out in the open, it would feel more separate and draw people to it.
- Regular scheduled performances -
- Parking and shuttle access
- Define culture bearers - looking at the different types of authentic culture bearers like mardi gras indians, baby dolls and providing opportunities for paid performances.
- Grab and go fresh meals - for lunch or to prep for dinner
- Just to walk through and soak up atmosphere
- Supporting local vendors
- Items/food/experiences of interest to visitors to nola
- Unique handmade local products.
- Gift items
- Items for sale that will directly benefit the local producers/artisans
- Craft stalls
- Food vendors
- Fresh produce
- History of the trade of goods
- Handmade local gifts
- Locally made art/crafts
- I like to go for local food and candles, and to bring out of town visitors
- Crafts demonstrations
- Show visitors
- Nothing really. I occasionally go during the fr qtr fest to listen to music and pass through on a long dog walk. I did go when i lived in the quarter, but that’s been a long time.
- Shopping. I also work there. During festivals, music and food.
- I take visitors to the market and i enjoy doing
some shopping there.
• It is also a interesting place to people watch
• When visitors come to town. When my two kids want to do “be tourist in our own town”.
• Dave m.-- I mainly used to go when i needed fruit for cocktails when i bartended at a nearby tavern. Now i mainly go for other reasons, such as grabbing lunch, etc.
• I bring visitors as well, generally i only shop when i have company
• I’ve been involved with the french market flea market for the last 40 years. I sometimes go out of habit. Sometimes for no reason at all,
• I go there to see diversity. There is range of vendors of different ethnicities.
• Live music/special events, i also walk through when i am in the quarter
• I go to see live music at the mint.
• I have been there for 11 years.
• ‘More live music
• I vend my handmade products in the market several days a month. I also go for live entertainment events.
• The fresh food is a good draw, but it doesn’t exist any more. And hasn’t for a while.
• A desire for fresh food - like vegetables, fresh fruit
• I think most visitors would go for fresh food if there was a free parking option.
• It’s usually an afterthought, to be honest.
• I rarely make a concerted effort to go to the french market, but because of its location sometimes i end up there
• Like “oh it’s a beautiful day, and i’m in the quarter. I’ll check out the market”
• I usually don’t go there with people coming to town
• Walking on royal street
• Glitter box- local artisans making jewelry essential oils, clothes hand made items
• Local art
• Art that’s inclusive and represents new orleans authentically (women people of color etc)
• Usually special events - live entertainment

What would bring you to the french market more often?
• Night markets would need to spend on safety. Fm officers note enough. Nopd required.
• Fmc needs to provide better security for vendors to and from parking as well as provide safer more economical parking.
• More local/specialty products; the mass produced items are not worth parking and walking in the market
• More products made in new orleans
• Ditto on periodically having new vendors
• Diy sessions on how to address issues in my historic home. That would be a helpful thing that would help a lot of locals.
• I agree with the need for additional safety at night markets, but it’s an intriguing idea.
• Live music. And more quality vendors (less touristy)
• Vendors will come and stay if they can make money. Treat vendors like the intelligent business people which they are knowing that there are going to be new vendors periodically — a lot of markets are always the same... You know what to expect, so it’s not as exciting to go often.
• Vendors informed festivals are to draw business. However vendors lose spaces to set up for the benefit of the festival set up.
• Less expensive parking.
• Local chefs’ demonstrations
• Post-covid promoting the market or shopping locally. There are folk who were who have no idea it’s there. Until refrigeration, and after slavery was outlawed, produce meat and seafood as well as dry goods were sold there. Consequently, everyone knew about it. Post-katrina, not everyone who knew about the market returned to the city. Promotion of the market to the citizens has been scattershot at best. 40-50 Yrs ago one could purchase antiques and genuine oriental rugs
• More local artists/entrepreneurs/chefs
• If the ferry fee was lifted or reduced i’d go to the french quarter and french market more often.
• Delicious local food - both casual outdoor eating as well as items i could hold in my hand and munch on as i walk
Appendix

• Collaborations with other existing markets — perhaps letting other markets “pop-up” on different days/weekends.
• Attract vendors who would sell items that people who live here would use
• If some type of arts/crafts class (such as fabric dyeing) were offered at the french market i’d go.
• I would definitely go to/support a night market
• We have lost majority of local farmers to both natural and economic disasters.
• I went to the tomato fest gala once, which was under the overhand. It was a great time and outdoors. More evening events like this could attract a wed. At the square type crowd bringing funding in post 5pm. Would need to be clean and safe.
• The festivals the fmc hold tend to run over the vendors
• More artisan crafts and less touristy items
• +1 For more evening/after work events.
• Rest rooms facilities who have to be improved and expanded. On a busy weekend day a vendor can spend up to a half hour seeking relief
• Locals need better parking access
• Performances by local jazz musicians
• Knife sharpening
• Services like key maker, shoe repair, tailor, china repair
• Massage therapists and other curated activities, including everyday services (cf. Asian markets)
• Would it be weird to have masseuses and such like you find in asian markets?
• If market was more food focused than trinkets. Especially local food, aimed at locals and not exclusively tourists. I would love something similar to reading terminal in philadelphia
• Engage schools, teaching trades --animate with activities
• Experience the true new orleans culture, that makes new orleans great
• A monthly first friday event; could have food vendors have a special or live music. Would be great to have fresh produce.
• Opportunities to learn about coast, wetlands, marine life on river
• Authenticity
• Culture bearers: who are they, do they sell, do they perform? Who pays them?
• Art to be shown, taught, shared; beading of mardi gras indians,
• If i were to go to the fm and it was not “bustling,” it would not have the same vibe.
• More places to sit, like benches (not tables and chairs). It can be tiring when visiting the market.
• More live entertainment in and right around the market.
• Always more and more fresh food.
• Once we are past the pandemic, more outdoor seating throughout the year with heaters in the winter and misters in the summer.
• I think of places like findley market in cincinnati. Would love more vendors like that.
• Food carts
• More live music, later hours--generally when i make it to the area, most of the market has closed.
• I'll add on to the greater variety of food.
• Music at night in the parking lot
• A more robust seafood market and more live entertainment/music, although that will be difficult because of the pandemic.More public speaking events,
• And to better parking.
• An art market
• Fewer tourists. Maybe some real antique stalls. I don’t think either thing will happen (well there are fewer tourists now, but that will pass with vaccinations). Julie
• More street food stand
• Food trucks
• Lesser traffic would draw more locals. Better parking. More food and variety
• Second more art and more seating, particularly towards the mint/flea market. I’ve gone to see balcony shows at the mint but the market is empty when they are done
• Use the street for art and music
• Try to attract more local people to better sustain the market.
• I don’t understand why we have never had a fish market with vendors throwing fish around like in seattle or, was it san francisco
• Like more street food stands. And also a really serious food market (fresh produce, fish, etc.).
• Changing food vendors
Appendix

- More music
- More art
- Live art
- I would love to see both sides across the street the market be completely filled with street food stands. Given our reputation with food already
- Street food
- Parking garage, build up. Where the lots are already
- More new orleans authenticity
- Security
- We are going to do all of the events, and regular outings and programming.
- It’s a government agency, the organization (not the people). The culture there is unable to pivot and move.
- More vendors selling products directed to locals
- Parking discounted if you shop
- Events and activities
- We need forward-thinking, nimble organization. Support by the citizens to help them with marketing, design, etc.
- Fresh food, fruits, vegetables, seafood
- More festivals
- The issue is the parking, it’s not free.
- Signage, similar to the cbd signage (ww2 this way, etc.)
- Carribean festival in crescent park, perform in dutch alley on saturdays, new festivals
- If i liked its offerings better
- If it felt like it was locals and not just tourists
- Unique, artistic
- Also if there were more “cool” things to do
- Like mural exhibits, art walks, culturally appropriate programming
- Express their artwork, art walks
- Also if there were more “cool” things to do
- Like mural exhibits, art walks, culturally appropriate programming
- Transportation is an issue for people over there, a shuttle perhaps
- More musicians
- More authentic artists and musicians
- There is too much blank concrete between the flea market and nearest building. This is made worse by the fence around the old us mint. Could be redesigned with green infrastructure, tables, etc. To create a sense of place. Moveable elements can make way for festivals
- Make a more inviting space
- The us mint has a cold unwelcoming feeling due to the black gate
- With the current climate . . . More and more we are realizing that the fmc has focused on marketing to the visitor / tourism. . . .Locals don’t really feel the pull to experience the french market. The overall feeling isn’t really authentic.
- And really connecting to the french quarter neighborhood. Services. Outreach. Better signage
- Parking
- Locals are looking for new orleans created items but stuff from oversees
- Fmc used to put on live entertainment obce a week and it was great
- Construction of parking garages on thei fm lots has been discussed off and on for 25 years.
- We have lost a lot of parking to the new streetscapes and bike lanes. These lots would not only be used during the day for the french market but also at night for frenchmen street.
- We miss the opportunity to use dutch alley on a regular basis. Tourists love to come to new orleans and be with the locals. The programming at the outdoor flea market could be more programmed - locals love festivals
- Dutch alley is a vastly underused resource.
- I agree. More signage and identifying the french market property . . . Yes. Folks come to my store and wonder if they are in the flea market. Or whre it is. Yes. Signage. Signage. Signage.
- There are a number of festivals at the jazz museum every year that carry over into the french market.
- For many years, i suggested “friday’s at the french market “ in dutch alley . . . Have a bank sponsor it . . . Hook up with hotels . . . Like the ylc at lafayette park. It just seems again . . . So much opportunity for strategic partnerships to create capacity and fun.
- Elysian fields
- The two lots on elysian fields
- The french market is underutilized after 5pm.
- The covered shed is not used after 5pm and makes a great space for live entertainment
Appendix

Who should the french market serve?

- 75% Visitors, 25% locals
- Mostly locals - perhaps 70% - because i think knowing that “this is where the locals go” will still draw a decent amount of tourists.
- The houseless population was mentioned earlier — how can the market (and our public spaces more broadly) better serve this community during “off hours?”
- Local artists and culture bearers — specifically black and indigenous folks who contribute disproportionately to what new orleans “is”
- I purchase art right here in new orleans.
- The french market could be a great place to have a fashion show featuring local designers and local live music.
- We should also expand what tourist expect from their new orleans experience!
- 90% Of all art is purchased when people are traveling. Locals purchase art when they visit their friends out of town or when they have guests
- Everyone of course — but it would be great to have a place in the quarter that celebrated and centered residents more.
- The income of locals would also have to improve along with the economy. Folk who have to survive on minimum wage will not be our best/ repeat customers
- There still may be a decent percentage of middle income black families, some of whom have children that might enjoy performances and outdoor installations that feature black culture.
- Locals, culture bearers.
- Young people! The market can be a key asset in cultivating the next generation of artists and makers.
- No! Loud music drowns out business
- As long as this is a tourism is the economic driver we need tourists who have the financial means.
- People who work in the french quarter and the surrounding area, including hospitality workers from restaurants and hotels who may find it useful to obtain services, fresh food, etc.
- I think it should serve locals and visitors
- It should serve everything new orleans (food, culture and music)
- If it markets to locals, fq residents and new orleanians, any tourists will like it
- As someone who lives farther from the quarter, to get me to come more when visitors aren’t in town, i would like a scheduled event/activity that is the start of spending an afternoon/evening in the quarter.
- Vendors, neighborhood residents, locals, visitors
- It should benefit local producers/makers/creatives
- People looking for a art, music, food and shopping experience
- Locals
- Primarily local people. It is important to know what they want in the market.
- Local job creation
- Tourists are important, too. Many tourists that visit new orleans want an authentic experience. The market should be a premiere place that offers that.
- Locals, of course, although it will draw tourists no matter what.
- Culture bearers
- Locals & tourists
- I think its possible to serve both locals and visitors if it was more ‘interactive’, more food/ music/things to see, combined with more variety of vendors
- Would be really cool if you could get international food vendors, genuine stuff
- Broader representation of new orleans in its vendors.
- The vendors and the customers :d
- Tie in different cultures, people and backgrounds to cultivate a connection
- Speaking as a parent, having kid stuff at the french market would be great
- Like a real authentic version of epcot. Haha
- Something for everyone, but not everything for everyone
- I think it’s a good respresentation and “handful” of the people that are in the city
- Tourists are the bread and butter for the vendors. Pike place is a hand made market and that helps
- Under utilized time during on off hours, nighttime city.
- Sustainable tourism, you want to bring something back from new orleans? I don’t go to the french market with visitors for crafts.

- Coffee festival? Festivals make everyone have an uptick
- Most experts say that if you serve locals, tourists will also love it. But if you aim to serve tourists, locals will hate it and many tourists will consider it low-end tourism as well
- Handmade is not be sustainable.
- Dutch alley could be a great market, performance space, etc. Day time or night time.
- Events at night, but that includes staff
- I'd like to see if there could be sections in the market - places i could purchase certain items in a particular area
- The vendors and the customers :d
- Locals, tourists, artists and vendors, members of the cultural community
- Speaking as a parent, having kid stuff at the french market would be great
- Locals first
- Tourists - that’s the marketing culture and has been for many years.
- The market serves the locals by providing the opportunity to sell to tourists.
- In other words, vendors are locals.
- The locals - the vendors are 95% locals. And, the jobs provided at the fmc - taxes, etc. Are local
- Locals could provide the goods to sell and locals would then buy the goods year round
- I think the board can help by actually shopping and helping be ambassadors .
- A totally handmade market is not sustainable.
- If you have vendors making their own products, they need time to sell and also days off to create.
- Yeah you mentioned having only local products, i like that idea. Get rid of the low quality chinese wallets, sunglasses, etc.
- Yes. It would take awhile to tranistion. Using the unutilized flea market at night . . . You could start on friday and saturday and have a handcrafted only night market!
Appendix

Public Jamboards
(Virtual Activities)
Appendix

Public Jamboards (Virtual Activities)

Who should the French Market serve?

- Locals
- Local job creation
- Culture seekers

How should the French Market add value to the French Quarter / to New Orleans?

- More music
- More art

What brings you to the French Market?

- Hello everyone
- Sandy is orange
- I'm here, Justin

What would bring you to the French Market more often?

- More music
- More art

- I go to see the music at the start
- I go to see the food at the start

- More street food
- More street food and art

- More vendors
- More vendors and music

Who should the French Market serve?

- Shoppers
- Locals & tourists
- Local culture and job creation
- People who want to support the local economy

How should the French Market add value to the French Quarter / to New Orleans?

- Local culture and job creation
- People who want to support the local economy
Appendix

Public Jamboards (Virtual Activities)

Who should the French Market serve?

- It’s a different experience from other farmers markets.
- It’s a community-based event.
- It’s a fun place to shop.
- It’s a place to meet new people.
- It’s a place to eat.

How should the French Market add value to the French Quarter / to New Orleans?

- It can serve as a door to the city.
- It can be a place to shop.
- It can be a place to eat.
- It can be a place to meet new people.
- It can be a place to have fun.

What brings you to the French Market?

- More live music
- A place to shop
- A place to eat
- A place to meet new people
- A place to have fun

What would bring you to the French Market more often?

- Events and activities
- Food
- Entertainment
- History
- Culture

Who should the French Market serve?

- It’s a different experience from other farmers markets.
- It’s a community-based event.
- It’s a fun place to shop.
- It’s a place to meet new people.
- It’s a place to eat.

How should the French Market add value to the French Quarter / to New Orleans?

- It can serve as a door to the city.
- It can be a place to shop.
- It can be a place to eat.
- It can be a place to meet new people.
- It can be a place to have fun.

What brings you to the French Market?

- More live music
- A place to shop
- A place to eat
- A place to meet new people
- A place to have fun

What would bring you to the French Market more often?

- Events and activities
- Food
- Entertainment
- History
- Culture
Appendix

Public Survey Responses

How should the french market add value to the french quarter/to new orleans?

- More handmade artisan goods opposed to cheap sunglasses, wallets, etc. Make it more of an art market and not a flea market.
- Bringing in artists from the surrounding area to be featured, maybe even from further outside the city, so we could experience them. I love the small business and food incubator idea, selling fresh produce, and would also love to see more (curated) second-hand vendors.
- The market contributes financially to the city every year. 2020 May be the exception, but existing operations have more than carried their weight for decades, if not centuries.
- Become a real market again.
- Through local outreach. More educational programs. Add authentic old school new orleans flavor. That is what visitors want to experience. Rare is a place in the french quarter these days doing that.
- Be a place that educates people about new orleans, has attractive offerings for a wide variety of locals and tourists, helps the local community especially the culture creators.
- It should be an anchor and a gateway to the quarter.
- Maintaining good balance of products/services to attract both continued out of town increase local support. Have clearly defined marketing plan with goals that are measured
- Provide a showcase for new orleans talent (music, art, artists etc)
- Validated parking. Delivery for fq residents. Need to advertise food options. Right now you only seem to advertise live entertainment so we dont think of f.M. For food or quality shopping
- Expand activity beyond usual market hours
- Economic driver while still having things to attract locals
- By mixing utility, culture and public service. E.G., Could it offer meeting facilities that could serve community civic needs and attract people to the fq who otherwise have few reasons to come down. For groups up to 50 or so it could be very appealing. As director of tulane's bywater institute which as a river front facility by the convention center i can promise you there would be interest.
- Authenticity
- Maintain authenticity. Show restraint on the t-shirt shops.

What brings you to the french market

- Work
- I like the local plants, local food, local candles, and international imports. I like the people watching, it is a great place to bring visitors.
- I vend there a few days a month and also enjoy live music events.
- Right now--virtually nothing, except for the occasional music performance.
- I buy clothes, jewelry, gifts, hard to find things, most of the food is great as i do eat there or grab food on the way home when in the quarter.
- Proximity
- I mostly walk through there when i'm walking around the fq where i live.
- Used to be able to get fresh produce
- Business. I am a vendor
- Usually only for special events
- Fresh fruit, vegetables and seafood - but recent visits have been unsuccessful
- Passing through on my way somewhere in the quarter
- I work in the french quarter and walk there for recreation or for a meal
- Shade on a hot day and looking for gift items
- Shopping, dining
- Honestly, i haven't visited the market in quite awhile.

What would bring you to the french market more often?

- Nightlife
- A scheduled event geared more towards locals.
- A real market with a wide range of produce, fish, etc. At a reasonable price.
Appendix

- A nice enclosed restaurant, authentically creole, more local culture, museum type places for educational purposes, later hours for some things. Wine shop.
- More appealing offerings
- Better design and a more new orleans focus.
- Fresh fish market
- More foot traffic. Covid control which isn't under the control of anyone
- More local products, a real produce and seafood market, more nighttime events
- Fresh fruit, vegetables and seafood
- Live music, demonstrations, street vendors selling authentic local crafts, especially at night
- More local products or events
- (1) Better and cheaper parking. (2) More diverse offerings.
- Fresh market with produce & seafood.
- I used to adore the fresh fruits and vegetables. However, i understand if locals don’t support enough produce purchases, vendors can't continue to show up only to provide ambiance.

Who should the french market serve?

- Locals
- Local creatives and small vendors, visitors seeking a small slice of new orleans in a welcoming and family-friendly space, and locals looking for that particular thing they generally get there.
- The market serves locals. The locals serve tourists.
- Locals.
- Locals and tourists
- Locals, tourists and vendors
- Locals and tourists.
- Locals would be nice
- The public and it’s tenants, both vendors and shop tenants
- Locals first - the sustainable tourism models. Exist for locals; tourists will follow
- The french quarter community and other locals.... And then the tourists will also follow
- Neighboring residents and tourists
- Everyone
- (1) The fq, treme and marigny/bywater communities and businesses (do any of them regularly shop for anything there?). Visitors
- Residents & visitors.
- Both residents, locals, artists, musicians and tourists. There’s enough room for all.

Virtual polls

Zip codes

- 43201
- 70115
- 70116
- 70116
- 70116
- 70117
- 70117
- 70117
- 70117
- 70117
- 70119
- 70119
- 70119
- 70122
- 70122
- 70130
- 70130
- 70116
- 70115
- 70001
- 70116
- 70131
- 70118
- 70118
- 70119
- 70117
- 70117
- 70130
- 70118
- 70130
- 70114
- 70114
- 70118
- 70112
- 70114
- 70117
- 70130
Appendix

How often do you go to the French market?

Daily
- 4 Times a week
- 1 -2 Times a month
- 6x year
- A few times a year
- A few times a year
- Annually, but more like a few times a year
- Before covid or since covid
- Annually
- About once a month
- Annually
- At least twice a week
- 2 Times/year
- 6xyear
- Annually (2-3 times)
- Few times a year
- Annually
- Lately only once a year
- Daily
- Daily
- Annual
- I go to the crescent park often, but virtually never to the fr mkt
- Probably a few times each year.
- Vend 2 to 3 days and sometimes visit with freinds
- Rarely
- I am a vendor that hasn’t really returned due to the pandemic
- Twice a year
- Several times each year
- Monthly

Why do you go to the French market?
- I am also a vendor who has not returned.
- I used to go more often when the ferry was free.
- 5 Out 7 days a week at my booth
- To shop for arts and crafts and to eat
- I enjoy bringing friends from out of town
- Work & people watch
- Relax and watch people
- I go for live entertainment and special events
- Shop for arts & crafts
- Sunglasses!
- I work near by the fr
- Peple watch, arts/crafts, food.
- I almost never go. Sometimes go during fr qtr fest or walking my dog.
- I used to go primarily for arts and crafts in the flea market and maybe to get a snack.
- I live in the fq and walk by.
- I rarely go and it is usually when i have visitors from out of town
- I am a vendor of handmade products. Love live entertainment events also.
- Usually to take out of town visitors or shop with the african vendors.
- I sell my handcrafted jewelry when there
- Work at the french market
- I work in the quarter
- I used to go for fresh food - but it’s almost non-existant so gave up.
- Work there and go occasionally with friends
- Relax and people watch
- Shop
- Sometimes visit to purchase food or products.
- I never go there on purpose, but i end up there sometimes
- Work
- I go there for all those reasons. Mostly to sell art.
- Typically to bring visitors
- Shop. Eat. Special events. I take visitor’s there bc/ it is much a part of the new orleans experience . .
- I am a vendor who has set up three days since the pandemic but i go at least twice a week to see what’s going on and to see what’s going on with the market and other vendors
- Arts & crafts, relax and watch people, to take photos
Appendix

Public Survey Results

I want the French Market to be a community commons, with social services and economic opportunities for all.

I feel safe at the French Market.

I want the French Market to be a place of commerce, with business incubator support for vendors and tenants.

I feel comfortable finding my way around the French Market.

I feel welcome at the French Market.

Count of I feel like I am getting a taste of authentic, local New Orleans flavor at the French Market.

I get the opportunity to talk to local New Orleanians at the French Market.
Appendix

Public Meeting Poll Results

How often do you visit the French Market?

- Daily
- Weekly
- Monthly
- Annually
- Never

Why do you go to the French Market?

- I work at / nearby the French Market.
- I pass by during my commute home / to work.
- I go for live entertainment and special events.
  - I go to shop for arts and crafts.
  - I go to relax and people watch.
  - I go to eat prepared food.
- I do not go to the French Market.
- I go when I have visitors in town.

What is your zipcode?

- 70131
- 70130
- 70122
- 70119
- 70118
- 70117
- 70116
- 70115
- 70114
- 70112
- 70001
- 43201
Appendix

Culture Bearer Jamboards (Virtual Activities)

What brings you to the french market?

- Events
- Organic locally sourced produce/ seafood and or gluten free food. More events for kids and producing opportunities
- Arts/ crafts, food, events
- There used to be a vegan crepe vendor and i'd go out of my way to go
- When my kids were young, for the scene
- The vendors during holiday shopping time
- Featuring local artists and culture bearers
- Festivals
- Events
- Wonderful food and fruit, somewhat interesting items for sale, ambiance and beauty of space
- Selecting high quality artists with original creations
- My org used to run kids & family “pop-up” events from 2014-2018
- What would bring more people would be an parking area for locals with a reasonable fee
- Yes to the artist in residence - they could be tasked with communicating with public, translating market themes
- Dr. Lisa: pre-covid - would come for food; she has a family member with a restaurant down there; would go for visits there on a saturday;
- Ethan: goes for special music events; would go as part of being in fq, riverfront; if in the quarter might just walk through rather than shopping
- Todd: it’s become more touristy; used to go there to listen to music; my family had done work as craftsmen in the area so there’s a lot of history; it used to feel more family oriented.
- Todd: life long resident of treme; part of the black men of labor group; work on the choice neighborhood initiative
- Dr. Lisa: brings family when they visit, esp. Grandchildren; rarely purchases items unless there’s a specific vendor recommended
- Ethan: would go see music if in the area; recently fm had been closed; trying not to do much if folks not wearing masks are around
- Todd: doesn't feel as welcoming to locals as it used to
- Ethan: macnco exec dir; working on zoning; noise; relief funidng; part of research on music in the french market
- Dr. Lisa: was going there for covid testing
- Todd: it has to be more everyone; locals are 365; fm is more open and could be used as a classroom
- Anne: works at noma; spent 24 years in higher ed; new orleans is adopted home ever since college
- Todd: uncle was a fruit peddler; he would go on sunday with his children to break up monotony of going to a show/park; would go for vendors and share history passed from great uncle
- Ethan: music at the mint on tues/thurs - typically more people adhering to soc. Dist.
- Todd: feels different than miami (near miami beach)where it feels more local and locals are coming out for the food/music
- Dr. Lisa: 7th ward - went to school in treme at mcdonogh 35; also worked on the choice neighborhood initiative
- Todd: now office isn’t too far from the area; used to go with coworkers down decatur for lunch; but due to social distancing that hasn’t happened recently
- Dr. Lisa: the fm is a microcosm of new orleans; those of us who are natives: our culture capital is not being considered there;
- Dr. Lisa: went to 35 mcdonogh; we used to walk through that area everyday; if we could do that w/ high school students; they could know and feel and see the history and herstory there everyday
- We’ve now got bands playing music on every street; we’ve gotten to used to the repeated bands and it’s not as special as it used to be.
- Todd: recently went due to the danny barker festival; but wants to ensure safe social distancing and that isn’t always the case
- Anne: mostly goes when people are in town or visiting; if i happen to be in the quarter, would walk through; not necessarily purchasing items
- Fq has no where to go (grow further); treme folks have always build their cultures;
- Fm doesn’t embody all the culture
- Todd: now it feels more like a tourist trap
Appendix

• Maybe one week it’s the 9th ward; another week it’s the 7th ward; that way people could be drawn there based on neighborhoods; people repping high school and their community
• Visited as a kid - rick’s pancake house
• Comraderie brings me to the space. It is a gig or business space for culture-related individuals, and they hang out afterwards in envie or at someone’s house
• Post-pandemic, it feels different. It’s empty, and you can also see the development changes - gentrification periods of the fq and fm. It’s hard to pinpoint what the era is.
• I have friends that live in the fq and near the fm
• My friends - it was their dream to live in that area (frenchman), and they pulled me into this space.
• Continue to go back for events. It is not active everyday.
• Great to find people that i could crash with during events and floods, and whatever else i needed. When i couldn’t get home from work.
• I wasn’t accessing it much when i worked in the fq at the historic no collection. It was a missed opportunity for people to gather.
• Similar to brocato’s it has a mix of everyone, but the fm doesn’t have something that is familiar, nostalgic.
• The event with ashe is a real highlight: maafa - it has the potential to change the narrative for tourists and make it about the history and architecture. Charleston and savanna have figured this out well
• Organic locally sourced produce/ seafood and or gluten free food. More events for kids and producing opportunities
• Arts/ crafts, food, events
• Festivals, and days when i wander or bike through the quarter (fq fest, music, random festivals at the mint, events at woldberg / moon walk park)
• Shopping
• Café du monde with out of town guests
• Events and entertainment
• Things that you go to the market to get (some vendors carry things from african countries, some foods are very easy to get at the market.) They may be thought of as things that tourists might want but they are also very accessible when i lived in treme.
• Visiting nearby locations - riverfront, frenchmen street
• Walk through the market five days a week as part of a walk to the river.

What would bring you to the french market more often?

• It was a big treat as a child to go and get produce from the market. It was a reflection of new orleans and was made of locals and local goods. It should be a place to show a reflection of new orleans
• Its a market place
• As market offering a place for locals to sell their goods. Offering prime location to vendors of all kinds offering opportunity for greater exposure
• Becoming a must go to place to shop. Becoming a hub for parents to take their kids.
• Becoming as much a place to locals as for tourists.
• Added value would be expanding vending opportunities.
• Locals see it as a tourist destination less as a local destination.
• Adds value by having the opportunity of sharing more authentic flavors both in foods and arts/ commodities
• Families... In nola ... Who knew?
• More original work, not just the imported stuff on offer in the flea market.
• Bring in new audiences via pop-ups
• Playbill pop-ups in the past -- kids events
• We need to have conversations around families. How can fm be an educational hub?
• Fm used to look better; aesthetically we need to make it more presentable; there should be tax credits available for that;
• Doesn't feel as welcoming to locals as it used to
• Schools used to use the fm and access it.
• The configuration and set up of fm needs to change
• Fm needs to be curated; right now it has any ticky tacky anything; it has no point of view: is it new orleans centric? Is it louisiana centric?
• Now it’s crowded, and if you’re chatting with a vendor you’re on top of another vendor.
Appendix

- We need to be real about the fact that the cultural capital of native and indigenous people has been dismissed and denigrated and misused; for values that are held only by a few or those with power/money
- Economic equity!!!
- Everyone loves to have us (culture bearers) in these conversations; but how are we getting paid?
- Consultants are getting paid; i can only speak for the black men of labor (i can’t speak for the other tribes): let’s start with where is the budget? There’s no budget for us.
- The people who make the culture - we’re not included in the economic benefit.
- Recognition, money, respect for cultural capital/provided by culture bearers!
- We have perpetuated our history and culture in our own areas. Educationally. Fm would have to be much more about parade sites and also historical sites; it hadn’t been legislated by the council; it’s done spontaneously
- New orleans has stories and points of view - how are we sharing those?
- People come to new orleans for culture, cuisine and the music; not for broadway, the zoo, and the ballet; all other cities have that; what they don’t have: the culture we do.
- We understand our value; we know we could bring crowds: 44 sundays out of the year there’s a second line; those organizations have to pay to be on the street; pay for dress; band; police, etc.
- Fm of today vs the 80s; it’s now more trashy than it used to be
- Culturally, to bring the black men of labor down to the fm it would have to be a whole mind blowing event
- Why would we come to fm free and not get paid for what we are bringing? We know we can draw people from the fq and walk them all around the city and benefit our group.
- I am not sure what is in the fm.
- The financial opportunity for people in the city. Making money for our culture bearers is as important as roots and nostalgia.
- A coffee stand from a familiar brand. That hearkens back to the days of kaldi’s.
- Parking - people figured it out. Tourists did. Residents and working people had challenges. Som cities do a shuttle program for parking lots off-site.
- Bathrooms could be “happier” and there should be more of them.
- I love the new additions like cp
- I loved the farmer’s market - greens and cauliflower it was a bit cost prohibitive for people with snap
- Find out where people are congregating naturally and make it intentional!
- Wap is entertaining, but causes traffic.
- Areas to sit outside and grab a drink.
- We don’t know how long it will be before we have our large scale festivals but the market could be a place for demonstrations (like they have at jazz fest) - a place that features and highlights local or regional arts demonstrations. The market could be a place that highlights artisans. I wonder what it could be like if there were consistent documentation of the activities (on youtube).
- Kids love the house floats. There’s a lot of real estate at fm - would be great to have a fenced in play thing or something where parents can hang out, have a drink, watch music, see cultural events and also have it be kid friendly (explicitly kid friendly programming).
- Cultural events: african drumming in congo square every sunday. If there were something unique to the market or a similar thing but on a different day. Connecting with an entity like june bug productions or ashe to see if there is a willingness to program something consistent (through partnership)
- Tekrema (possible partner) - school of dance and movement
- Cultural events
- Indigenous and traditional religions: people don’t know but seem to want to know how to conduct themselves at sites that are considered sacred (move this to previous question). For a lot of ppl, the river, congo square, etc. Is a sacred site...
- Live music in the market
- With my writing mentor & things that we’ve published. We also have kelly harris debeerry, who is a new orleanian and is on staff nationally with poets and writers. Does significant literary programming in the south. Could help feature nola writers.

- The mint, closeby has hosted a number of literary events. That might be a way to leverage the programming and helping fm be known nationally as a place that does this kind of literary programming.
- Indigenous and traditional religions: people don't know but seem to want to know how to conduct themselves at sites that are considered sacred (move this to previous question)
- You have practitioners in african and indigenous religions. Proximity to river could be a place for cultural programming in indigenous traditions because you're so close. That is something that draws ppl to new orleans. It would be very important that it's not something that exploits but honors the traditions. Otherwise it would be better to not touch it at all than to do something that would offend ppl.

Who should the french market serve?

- All citizens of new orleans.
- Locals and tourists alike
- Residents and visitors
- More outreach to local and ethnic leaders
- Seize the pandemic moment by reclaiming it for locals
- During covid-19? Will things change afterwards?
- Techniques to attract locals during the pandemic ... Free parking?
- There are so many groups that need to be served - tourists, legacies of families, displacement of neighbors and families.
- Lack of understanding how people's identities (locals) fit into the space. It seems like it's for tourists.
- Side note - mardi gras indians is not a good blanket term.
- It should serve everyone, but we need to re realistic about who is actually in the area
Appendix

Culture Bearer Jamboards (Virtual Activities)
Appendix

Culture Bearer Jamboards (Virtual Activities)

What would bring you to the French Market more often?
If you are a culture bearer, what would allow you to share your skills and cultural experience at the French Market?

What brings you to the French Market?

Who should the French Market serve?
If you are a culture bearer, what would allow you to share your skills and cultural experience at the French Market?

Who should the French Market serve?
Culture Bearer Survey
Responses

How should the french market add value to the french quarter/new orleans?

• 1. Be family friendly 2. Be culturally relevant and honoring 3. Serve as a first and last stop for your hometown staycation or one-day vacation 4. Transition from daytime family venue to riverfront nightspot
• There should be more music other than the 2 places that currently exist
• Tells the story through the eyes of those who live and were born, but also their ancestors

What brings you to the french market?

• Walking for exercise and fresh air, shopping, eating, specialty or cultural items, nearby venues, entertaining out-of-town guests
• Shopping, networking, eating drinking & the music

What would bring you to the french market more often?

• Cultural experiences, events, shopping
• An opportunity to participate in a babydoll stroll, cleaner restrooms, & new / different product availability
• Free events, easy access and highlighted cultural events

Who should the french market serve?

• Neighborhood residents, local residents, and (eventually) tourists. People have always been regional day visitors. The french market could be an even more prominent safe, outdoor venue.
• Locals & tourist -kid friendly
• Everyone, with local support preferences
Appendix

Culture Bearer Survey Results

I want the French Market to be a place of commerce, with business incubator support for vendors and tenants.

I feel like I am getting a taste of authentic, local New Orleans flavor at the French Market.

I want the French Market to be a community commons, with social services and economic opportunities for all.

I get the opportunity to talk to local New Orleanians at the French Market.

I feel safe at the French Market.
Appendix

Culture Bearer Poll Results

How Often do you visit the French Market?

- Monthly
- Annually

How Often do you visit the French Market?

- Monthly
- Annually
Public Virtual Meeting
February 25, 6-7 PM

Public Survey
February 25 - March 12
TABLE OF CONTENTS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Process &amp; Overview</td>
<td>03</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Public Meeting</td>
<td>04</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Breakout Rooms</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Priority Program Ideas</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Poll/Survey Questions</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Next Steps</td>
<td>07</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appendix</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Raw Data Results</td>
<td>08</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
The goals of the French Market Flea & Farmers Shed Study include:

- Envisioning a French Market that supports local culture bearers and advances the city’s cultural economy.
- Developing programming and operations that serve the local public and promotes sustainable tourism.
- Identifying short, medium, and long-term capital investments at French Market.

We initiated our process for this study with the review of past studies performed by Project for Public Spaces and pedestrian planning initiatives led by the City of New Orleans. In our analysis, we identified key insights from past work that are still relevant today and are working to build on those recommendations through current research and a stakeholder engagement process.

We have completed two rounds of stakeholder engagement meetings with current French Market vendors, local culture bearers, and the general public in January, February, and March of 2021. While the first round of engagement included feedback that would inform the French Market’s evolving culture and mission, in the second round of engagement, we received more specific feedback for programming and operations at the French Market sheds. A summary report for Round 1 Engagement was issued at the end of February. The following pages summarize how Round 2 meetings and surveys were facilitated, what questions were asked, and common themes that were heard from the various stakeholder groups that participated.
Public Meeting

Approximately thirty public stakeholders participated in a virtual meeting on Thursday evening, February 25th, from 6:00 to 7:00 pm. Approximately 70% of participants in this meeting indicated that they had participated in the first round of engagement and 30% were joining the process for the first time.

The meeting started with brief introductions, overview of project goals, and summary of common themes heard in the first round of meetings. Our team then presented a working Theory of Change for the French Market which had been shaped by input received so far. Following this presentation, participants on the call were invited to share their additional insights related to the theory of change by responding to live survey questions. Participants were then divided into small 5-7 person breakout rooms to participate in interactive virtual activities and small group discussion. The session concluded with small groups returning to the main room to debrief and share out key insights discussed in their breakout rooms.

Breakout Rooms

Participating stakeholders spent 30 minutes in breakout rooms. During breakout rooms, participants were asked to envision programming and operations under the French Market flea and farmers sheds. Stakeholders participated in 2 interactive activities to guide this discussion. The activities were organized by a holistic framework that considered social, educational, cultural, organizational, economic, and physical impacts.

The first activity showed program ideas that were offered in the first round of meetings. Participants reviewed these ideas and built on them with new or related programming suggestions. We then asked participants to work as a group to identify priority program ideas to develop further.

In the second activity, participants placed their chosen priority program at the center of the holistic framework and considered opportunities created by that program idea and identified specific resources and partnerships that would be necessary to implement that program successfully.

Above: Map of the food shed and flea market shed. Below: Program themes most commonly discussed between all breakout groups.
To the right are examples of how the virtual activities were laid out and completed by participants. The most common programmatic suggestions were event-based. Participants were interested in more active programming, through a variety of festivals. Participants emphasized the need for infrastructure and finances to be in place to implement these ideas successfully. Participants elaborated that this means paying musicians and artists fairly, partnering with the Mint, and clearly identifying physical boundaries under the sheds so that people are not dancing on top of the vendors. Stakeholders want to ensure that the French Market’s programming tells the full story and history of New Orleans: the good, bad, and the ugly.

Priority Program Ideas

Stakeholders who participated in breakout group discussions identified programmatic, operational, and physical ideas as priorities for the French Market. The following priority ideas were discussed in more detail during the second activity:

Parking & Transportation
- Create multi-level, accessible parking nearby.
- Partner with the RTA.
- Add more bike parking.
- Offer parking validation for New Orleans residents.

Physically Welcoming Environment
- Provide more transit options like a rideshare hub, pedicabs and parking areas for bikes.
- Improve lighting and cleanliness.
- Create more connection to surrounding businesses so it feels more like a destination.
- Offer some kind of loyalty program like a punch card for people who spend money at the FM.

Fresh Veggie & Seafood Market
- Include culturally appropriate food.
- Invest in more advertising.
- Make food offerings fresh and affordable.
- Host food festivals.
- Partner with Market Umbrella and FPAC

Vendor Leadership & Support
- Use Wifi/tech enabling tools such as a digital map of market or an app that shows offerings/events at the market, menu of food options, etc.
- Offer parking validation or incentives for people to not travel by car.
- Create funding opportunities for small business cohorts by using tools to grow businesses in a way that is equitable and consistent with FMC branding (create a cohesive ecosystem).
- Share stories highlighting the vendors’ background.
- Help vendors develop marketing strategies.
- Add a shipping stall that can package and print labels so vendors don’t have to hear, “it won’t fit in my suitcase”.
- Offer financial literacy training.
Art Market/Night Market

- Create a multisensory experience at the market at night, which includes food, beverage, music, lights, art, etc.
- Partner with museums to create content or events a la Luna Fete.
- WWOZ could run a night time radio event.
- Daytime could be more kid focused.
- Host Podcast recordings or a recurring storytelling series (culturally oriented and centered on New Orleans)
- Host local comedy shows.
- Focus on local art & culture.

Polling

Stakeholders were asked to reflect on the following questions which relate to the theory of change being developed for the French Market. These questions were formatted as live polls during the virtual meeting and included in a web-based survey that was distributed to those who participated in the virtual meeting and made available to anyone who could not attend. Below are summaries of common responses to each question.

How should the French Market’s history be preserved?
The most common suggestion was to utilize multifaceted mediums. Stakeholders suggested information kiosks, plaques throughout, apps, guided tours, storytelling corners, and live performances (perhaps in different era clothing). Another commonly suggested strategy was to uplift and highlight the artists and vendors that are already there. The vendors are a part of the ever growing history of the market and what has made it a destination for centuries. Survey responses emphasized to include all histories (i.e. slavery, Native Americans, etc.) There was a strong desire to bring back the fresh food market.

How can we make the French Market feel safe and clean?
Respondents suggested that the French Market maintain the higher COVID standards for cleanliness throughout the market sheds, but especially at the bathrooms. Other suggestions included pressure washing the exterior areas on a more regular basis and providing signage that encourages people not to litter. A number of people advocated for more visible security, better lighting, and creating more activity in the areas surrounding the market to make it feel more safe, especially at night. It was also suggested that the French Market help connect the homeless population with social services and that French market vendors and staff should be trained to help de-escalate conflicts. Respondents felt that if the French Market is presented as a professional and beautiful space, that will set the expectation for keeping it clean and safe.
What does equity at the French Market mean and look like to you?
Respondents brought up equity issues related to vendor policies and regulations at the French Market, particularly how tenured vendors enjoy certain privileges that are not easily accessible by new, non-tenured vendors. It was suggested that more flexible policies around vendor fees and a lottery system for stall allocation would help create a more equitable environment and increase opportunities for new and prospective vendors. Fair and living wages for performers and French Market workers was also identified as being important.

The diversity of vendors was highlighted as a good indication of equity at the French Market but that there should be more people of color from New Orleans represented by the vendors and FMC staff and board. It was suggested that the French Market should celebrate the diversity of its vendors and of the City of New Orleans through diverse food and program offerings.

Respondents felt that the French Market should feel welcoming, inclusive, and relevant for people from all walks of life, especially local New Orleanians. They want to see more local, homemade crafts being sold and community leaders, culture bearers, and businesses being more involved with programming at the French Market.

Next Steps

Over 100 people have participated in this stakeholder engagement process so far. Approximately 50 people participated in this second round of engagement, with many of them having already participated in our first round of engagement. Thank you to everyone who has contributed to this work and helped us build on the valuable feedback we have been receiving through meetings and surveys. This document summarizes feedback from the second round of stakeholder engagement and will be published on the French Market website and distributed directly to those who have participated thus far.

We will use the feedback we have received from the first and second round of stakeholder engagement to draft preliminary recommendations for the French Market and hold another round of stakeholder engagement to share and ground-truth our recommendations with you. We will also use the next round of engagement to envision how those recommendations will impact the French Market facilities. Round 3 Engagement is scheduled to happen in April and specific dates and times will be announced on the French Market website in the coming weeks.

A final recommendations document will be issued in Spring 2021. The final document will be shared publicly on the French Market’s website and distributed directly to everyone who participates in the process.

Below is a timeline of our projected engagement process.
Appendix

The following pages are documentation of raw feedback results collected through activities, surveys, and polls in the second round of engagement meetings.

Virtual Activity Results

Program Ideas from Round 1

- Everyday services (knife sharpening, shoe repair, massages, barber, etc.)
- Free events
- Fresh produce market
- Fresh seafood market
- Covid testing & vaccination
- Improved public bathrooms
- Parking garage/more parking
- Wayfinding through local art installations
- Fenced in area for kids to play
- Coffee stand
- Both sides of the street filled with food stands
- Financial opportunities for culture bearers
- Business incubation services
- Shuttle to and from the French Market
- Vendor leadership opportunities
- Monthly youth markets
- Scheduled events for kids
- Wireless access points
- Library events at the Mint
- Historical & coastal education
- Storytelling corner
- Pop-up markets
- Monthly international day
- Night markets
- Live performances
- BIPOC-led cultural events (African, Caribbean drumming)

New Programs Ideas from Round 2

- More activities for kids - you get more customers when you get the entire family
- Pop-ups: Standup comedy, performances, dance, etc.
- Daily live music (several times a day on weekends), funded by the city’s new Tourism and Cultural Fund
- Music: Should not be too loud (from experience as a vendor). Vendors need to be able to conduct business. In the past, brass bands (in the breezeway between the markets) have been too loud to hear ourselves and customers.
- Habits clearly defined so that the dancing that might ensue from music would not encroach on vendors (which happens during FQ festival)
- Curated music with a designated stage to allow for more control in some areas of the market
- Apps that indicate what programs, vendors, food options exist at FM sheds
- IDE, nationally and internationally
- During carnival have a carnival day in the market for kids. Get Blanne Kurd involved and have a paper mache, undecorated float, set up in the market and have kids decorate it. And turn the market sheds into floats and throw beads from the market
- This is a day market (not night), need to bring families in. Bring in his bands to play music on the corner. Set up billboards on Canal pointing to FM - as oldest historic flea market
- Culturally its up to the vendors to celebrate their cultures. Have an international day and invite vendors and local artists to bring their cultures through music, food, kids activities and family fun days. (Roux carre fun day)
- Its an international market as much as it is a local market. A lot of vendors sell imports. Sustainability/green should be a bigger part of FM mission. Go from plastic to paper. Put a cap on how much plastic vendors can sell.
- People need to know about the international products sold at FM. We aren’t here to celebrate diversity. We are here to sell products.
- The way they have been with FQ fest and bringing people from different places, FM has been doing everything perfectly.
- More security. Everything is good
Appendix

• FM used to have vendors cook and bring food from their cultures for potlucks but now not so much. We would like to do that again.
• Children’s Programming
• Geo-targeting on wifi access
• Support for vendors - business support
• Does Cafe du Monde have exclusivity as a coffee shop?
• Creole Tomato Festival - one of the best events; weekends where the market/jazz museum work in concert - partnerships can be helpful
• Small festivals can be very successful as well
• Market’s symbolic value - solar panels as part of green energy
• Partnerships with corporate philanthropy who want to support in creating savings accounts for culture bearers
• Musicians not getting paid enough for participation in festivals (FQF)
• Art Markets - The one on Frenchmen hasn’t restarted - a night market with music and a focus on handmade art (related to Luna Fete idea); filling void
• Night markets/events: Something akin to light shows at Luna Fete - could help to tell the (hi)story of New Orleans
• Clearly telling and highlighting the full history of New Orleans (the good, bad, and ugly) - pop-ups, oral historians, signage
• Ex: Adinkra - Iron Work all over the city built by slaves and free Black people; the Sankofa symbol - knowing and recognizing those symbols
• Some of the profits from FM going toward an individual development account program for culture bearers

Prioritized Program Brainstorms

Physically Welcoming Environment
• Parking areas for bikes
• Lighting, keep sheds clean, maintenance of facilities
• More connection to the surrounding businesses so that people feel comfortable traveling in and out.
• Safe & welcoming space would attract more ppl to spend and keep them in the environment longer and equate to more dollars spent.
• Mini transit hub where you can catch an uber or pedi-cab so you can grab your transit and go.
• A lot of cities are turning underused freight zones into uber stands. There’s an app that you can use to turn a freight zone into a transit hub (for rideshare).

Parking
• Multi level parking on 2 lots, with shops on ground floor. Helps the neighborhood -- Frenchman.
• Access to disabilities. Must be near.
• What about partnerships with RTA to move people more effectively.
• Parking for vendors: a better system to prioritize set-up
• Inadequate bike parking
• Does subsidized parking make sense? Discounts, etc.

Fresh Veggies, Seafood Market
• Access point for food versus a market with choice (of vendors)
• Destination: cost-effective, volume
• Cultural context

Fresh Produce Market
• More advertising for food
• If the FMC can convince the city to subsidize rent for farmers/food vendors, or even artists/craftspeople, it could help fill some of the empty space at the market
• Hot tamales if possible along with fresh food
• French Market Corp. could make it easier to sell food
• Culturally significant foods
• Food festivals at the market

Parking Lot/Parking Garage
• Elysian Fields and Esplanade parking lot
• Advertising for parking validation for residents and locals

Vendor Leadership & Support
• Wifi/tech enabling tools to support vendors - geotagging and ping visitor’s phones when they are close to a vendor or what the offerings/events of the day are
• Lowering the barriers to access for business and visitors/local shoppers will increase demand and lower negative forms of competition
• Incentives for people to not travel by car
• Parking - validation and/or discount for locals (and vendors alike)
• Parking lot: it’s not a produce market, and it will not be anymore. Those days are over.
• Funding opportunities for small business cohorts?
• Greater and increased opportunities for vendors to express their wishes & vision
Appendix

• Empowering the vendors with tools to manage and grow their business in a way that is equitable and consistent with FMC branding --> cohesive ecosystem
• Collecting and featuring the stories behind wares and the cultural influences behind them
• Vendor incubation and capacity building offered through a partnership
• Square infrastructure & program throughout
• Promotional lanes to ensure that FMC, the entire entity is complimentary of vendor promotion - best practices.

Art Market/Night Market
• Multisensory activity at night (food, beverage, music, lights, art, etc.)
• Other idea: can we call it something instead of a flea market?
• Have the lights, music, and food in addition to art - create a distinction between day and night market; “class it up” slightly
• Inspired by La. Art & Science Museum: cool holographic exhibit where you could see historical figures/video/3d (could have live actors, also)
• WWOZ - night time music radio event (similar to WWNO’s “out to lunch” in a location);
• Radio session located at the FM at night with a musician; bring in more people to the area
• Engaging and hiring local singers, actors, culture bearers - short plays or stories that talk about New Orleans; funny, quirky, interesting, lesser-known history
• Daytime can be more kid focused;
• Some evening programming more clearly aimed at adults; some nighttime programming very clearly made family friendly
• Local comedians with shows or cultural history
• Podcast recordings or a series once a month or every other month - somewhat like Ted talks but much more New Orleans/ culturally oriented; not overly intellectual (more relaxing)
Survey Results

How should the French Market’s history be preserved?

- Providing products that are reflective of New Orleans and artisans
- Written, video, audio
- It is very important
- The Market’s history should be “living history”. There should be ongoing activities, content and programming that present the many facets of the Market’s history in a way that is fresh, appealing and relevant for audiences of all ages
- Via various mediums (artistic displays, audio recordings; 3D/holographic images or videos; interactive kiosks; photo exhibitions; actors in period dress)
- Re-establishing its historic purpose of providing fresh food
- Don’t know.
- Renewable energy (solar panels, energy conserving upgrades)
- Through historical, cultural and opportunities for economic equity among artists, vendors and the general public.
- History should be reflected at the FM through performances, information kiosks, etc. But also, there should be quality print and digital media documents, as well as earned media feature pieces
- The history is well preserved.
- Advertisement explaining the market history.
- Respecting existing structures.
- By celebrating not living in the past. Be vigilant of the maintenance of the existing structure.
- Try to encourage more fruit and vegetable vendors.
- Photos and written history interviews of long-term vendors.
- By keeping as much interest as possible on unique items.
- Allow things that are not handmade. I am born and raised in New Orleans. And as long as I can remember I would be able to come to the market and get everything (from the guy who sold coins, to magic tricks, wooden guns, sugar cane, and the list goes on). Now with wanting only handmade vendors we don’t have selection. And in today’s world having more vendors would draw more people with social media.
- Leave buildings, colors, layout as is with only structural changes. Have an info booth/stand with flyers and pictures for people.
- By highlighting the open air market and local art. As a transplant, when I would visit New Orleans the Market was always a highlight for my visit.
- The French Market is a famous place, history, landmark and very unique for the City of New Orleans.

How can we make the French Market feel safe and clean?

- Lighting plays an integral part in feeling safe. Going through with a pressure cleaner and pressure cleaning the whole place makes daily maintenance easier. Pressure cleaning once every 3 months or every 6 months would make a difference.
- More security. Better and more lighting
- Better security
- Visible street cleaning and sanitation crews; signage that encourages people not to litter, and of course bathrooms. People have become hyper concerned and vigilant about cleaning b/c of Covid, so the bar is now a lot higher than it was a year ago. Sadly, the presence of homeless people congregating or loitering in the bathroom deters from the perception of safety and cleanliness so this has to be addressed on an ongoing basis
- In addition to all the physical upgrades that were mentioned during the meeting, you should consider not calling the daytime market a “flea” market. That makes it sound unclean.
- Better lighting and more interactive space along the streets that run along the sides.
- More security, including NOPD officers working detail shifts.
- Late night events could bring people to the space at night so it isn’t such a dead zone.
Appendix

• Provide more access to clean bathrooms, more lighting and active programming throughout the day.
• Cleanliness: start with COVID standards and continue. Have private security like museums where they are noticed but not intimidating. Train vendors and staff on recognizing issues and trying to manage before they escalate. Reflect professional and beautiful space that sets expectation for keeping it clean and safe.
• By inviting musicians to set up and play on weekends instead of allowing relentless drum beating next to my booth.
• Vendors should clean their spots at end of the day.
• The market is clean, the “art” crew does a good job. Kim David and Darlene are all a big plus.
• By having a presence of law enforcement (security). New bathrooms
• We should have at least one police office on duty.
• We need more security guards. I am very satisfied with Kim Harris work. She kept our stuff as clean as she could.
• Have better security.
• Safe: By providing security during the open hours. Clean: starting with the upkeep of the restrooms.
• Keep a security guard just for the Market.
• Have clear signs pointing to bathrooms with opening times. Keep them clean. Have uniformed officer/security walk around. Have more. Keep them visible.
• Maybe add some security patrols to help with the feeling of safety.
• Safe: We always need the security and police maintain all times, meanwhile the business open. Clean: We would like to work together as the team from the office, vendors and cleaning company to make this place special for customers.

What does equity at the French Market mean and look like to you?

• Equity in regards to French Market, when a tenured vendor doesn’t pay their taxes then can’t vend for a certain time that exceeds “maintaining tenure” rules then they lose tenure. Equity can also mean that tenured reps that get to set up because they purchased space in advance (ab) spots should not still be holding up spots on the out side unloading when non-tenured vendors have waited to get a spot, then have to wait for tenured vendors to get their vehicles out of new vendors spots. Understanding things look different now because of Covid, it would be a good time to offer new vendors a new kind of “lottery” on getting prime spots while earning their time. There are 3 powers spots “lottery” made available to low tenured vendors that give them opportunity to prime spots. (Give them a taste of the carrot and they may stay longer). There is 3 random drawing for vendors 200-to the end during lottery days. If their number is drawn they are giving the option to move up to the top 50 spots during lottery for securing spots. If they choose to not partake then that spot goes back to tenured vendors during that lottery process. This would give 12 low tenure vendors a year to have a prime spot for 3 months. At the end of the 12 months, all low tenure vendors names are reentered for the next year. A low tenure vendor does not get to picked randomly twice in a 12 months period.
• FMC taking vendor recommendations seriously
• The market is very equitable, but I really like more diverse food
• The Market needs to feel welcoming, inclusive and relevant for folks from all walks of life. Starting with New Orleanians as the core audience. It would be interesting to do some sentiment analysis of locals who don’t go to the market, to find out why (besides parking), and to try to address some of the perceptions (i.e. - It’s only for tourists, or the programming isn’t for me, or the events, and activities are too expensive).
• Perhaps there could be a certain number of vendor slots provided at a sliding scale, so that culture-bearers (craftspeople) who may not be able to afford the normal rate can still participate. Also, it should be policy that no performer will get paid below a minimum rate. (I don’t know what that rate should be. Perhaps you all can research what the going rate is for musicians in a city where they get paid fairly, but certainly the preparation/rehearsal time they have to put in should be included as well.)
Appendix

- Economic opportunities for a diversity in vendors and those who can be served by it. Creating programming that appeals to various groups.
- Don't know.
- Involving the community leaders and businesses that make up the heart of New Orleans culture.
- Vendors, local and beyond, sharing in vending and telling the story of the area over time and historically beginning accountable.
- FM staff and vendors and shoppers reflect different colors and cultures. But I think this starts at the FM corporation level with FM staff and board.
- I am enjoying working at the French Market.
- We have an equitable situation at the Market. The tenure system supports the equality.
- The equality of being fair and impartial. I don’t know how to describe what that would look like, what it means at the French Market. The same rules and regulations for everyone. Enforced without bias. Vendors being made a part of decisions that they are affected by. I think both of these examples are presently being carried out by the management in place.
- Preserving French Market history.
- Having vendors being treated the same, which is good.
- I think we should encourage uniqueness of products and services with respect to the current vendors as well as any incoming vendors.
- You don’t see any.
- Treat vendors the same, no favoritism! Have rules and apply them to all, don’t let things “slide” for some, not others.
- It looks like crowd of people moving through the market enjoying all the vendors wares. I mean seeing tourists enjoying not only the market but the city as a whole.
- French Market looks like my second home because we spend more time than at home. Most of our vendors have been open at the French Market for a longtime. 32 years, this place gives us peace of mind and happiness.

List 3 programs you think would be a good addition to the French Market

- COVID testing in this area makes absolutely no sense to me. Why would you potentially have people with Covid coming to your area to get tested when you are trying to keep a “virus” free area. Covid testing and creating an area for potentially infected people to come and shop, use the restroom, touch stuff then test positive that makes absolutely no sense. Customer participation cards sorta like what casinos do. They have a French Market card that gets “punched or stamped” when shopping and after they have spent so much money they get a free drink or food from the food area. If you provide a fenced area for kids to play you offer yourself up for any liability that would rise for that kid zone (to include opening the door to pedophiles hanging out in the area). Providing marketing strategies for optimizing your booth to gain the most foot traffic based off of colors, product placement, fonts, etc. Teaching vendors how to set up for shipping while they are in the market so they don’t have to hear “that won’t fit in my suitcase”.
- Printing shipping labels for vendors so they can ship same day for their customer and the customer see their product be packaged and ready for pick up while they are there (huge value add).
- Vendor leadership, adult night market, kids area
- Foods events, like Tomato Creole Fest
- A permanent kids’ area with a signature design element that is appealing for kids of all ages. Not just pop-up play during festivals.
- Vendor training, loyalty program, pop-ups that don’t compete with vendors.
- Fenced area for kids might be difficult to implement, but families are (in my experience) a good demographic. Pop-up food stands or food festivals sound great, but there would probably be some push back from restaurants in the farmer’s market if the added competition outweighed the added customer traffic. Festivals would be great to attract.
- A weekly night market (similar to Frenchmen art market) involving WWOZ to help promote the market through some weekly radio show that takes place at the French Market. Thinking something similar to out to lunch at Commanders Palace but instead at the Market and maybe focused on the cultural history of the French Quarter. Could involve local culture bearers, musicians, and/or comedians (and could tie in quite well with the night market idea) /// A little more green space. I realize the space is already limited, but perhaps even just planters all around the space, could really brighten up the experience and make it a place people feel like sticking around for longer.

• Covid testing, free storytelling sessions, vendor leadership training and free access to other businesses
• Health (covid testing, flu shots, simple medical things...Partner with LCMC), fresh produce (market or distribution hub), vendor training
• Not allowing the beating of pails directly behind me.
• Coffee stand, sanitizer stand.
• Weekly, rotating pop-up food booth featuring cuisine from around the world. Start and ending point for foot tours. Tie in with Mint for focus on music and shopping events bringing vitality to both venues.
• In the past we have had cooking demonstrations. Kids activities for special events, such as Halloween. It’s hard to speculate on any new “additions” now when we are unsure of the lasting effects of COVID. Right now getting back to some semblance of normalcy would be priority programs should be temp., not permanent, seasonal coincide with holidays and special events.
• Move tables and chairs to sit and eat. Kids zone. Encourage more vendors to set up outside.
• No need for an area for kids to play our market, do not have enough space for it. Testing COVID in the market will cause traffic jam. Do not need any leader training me after 38 years working in the market as a vendor. We can have a coffee truck only if its Cafe du Monde’s truck.
• Have area where customers can relax to keep them in the Market, flea market area.
• I do like having a fenced area for kids. Maybe once a month food truck vendor extravaganza with a theme. Encourage selected vendors randomly feature their art/craft for the day.
• At night turn it into a food truck park instead of being closed.
• New member mentorship program. Holiday events. Street performers? Maybe?
• For the kids activity, face paint, art context, sometime on the weekend.

Pick one program that you mentioned above and write down the program. Then, elaborate on what would be needed to make that program successful at the French Market. Consider the cultural, economic, organizational, social, physical, and educational needs and opportunities for the program.

• Printing shipping labels: each vendor has their own account with Fedex, UPS or USPS. Each one of these carriers provide online creating of shipping labels. Each vendor has all their own shipping needs (boxes, packaging and tape). The office provides printing labels for a minimal charge (this can be done through a webprint browser that can be password protected on the network). Once the package is completely packaged, the client then can take the package and drop off themselves at any of the carriers or Fedex and UPS can be scheduled for daily pickups at 5pm everyday. Very simple solution with a huge value add to vendors and clients.
• Encourage market and promote the local creatives who vend at the market
• New Orleans has the most diverse food, make events and opportunities for food, new vendors
• Loyalty program could be anything that rewards consumers for shopping/spending money with FM vendors. It could be free parking, free item from FMC or ongoing discount on purchases. FMC would need vendor buy-in, tracking system for purchases and broad promotion of the program to locals and visitors. It would build a local and regional following that could help promote through social media.
• Don’t know.
• I think the night market combined with a weekly
radio show (again similar to out to lunch) would be a real boon to the market. Could be more adult focused, with slightly more upscale vendors and perhaps some upgrade in night time lighting (someone suggested similar to the effect used in the luna fete celebration). The radio show/ podcast could be hosted by a musician and comedian (to help tie in the market to that part of the community) and feature a different culture bearer each week to talk about different historical anecdotes about the French Quarter, the French Market, or New Orleans culture in general. It would serve as both a fun event that could draw in income for the market, as well as a broader megaphone to help promote the daytime (and new nighttime) market. Then even people who can’t make it to the market for whatever reason can still be a part of the market.

- The support for vendors through free training, access to tech and wifi for easier vendor transactions, vendor highlight media rotation based on product and through a story of historical events that also aligns with active festivals/events in New Orleans would help. The training in financial literacy, business up sell, b2b and b2c support for example will help support the current vendors sustainability in the market and if marketing and history/events are aligned you draw more people to the market and more of a ability to tell a cultural, intelligent, cohesive story.
- Fresh produce: partner with market umbrella and FPAC and sketch this piece out with them.
- We would like program for the kids and music in the future when more normal.
- Coffee makes happy vendors and they work hard.
- The Mint seems very underutilized. Daily jazz concerts should be part of every city tour. The tour could include conclude at the Mint and let the tourists roam the Market. Geoposting would supply visitors with info on the delights of the market.
- If I could think of a program and could elaborate on what would be needed to make it successful and consider all the vague needs and opportunities listed, I would be doing it! To be successful offer something that appeals to the majority of your audience, which mostly comes from another state or country. They are here for an experience and, or a momento (souvenir).

- Kids zone.
- Kids area: maybe face painting, balloons, and music. Art competition. Scrabble competition.
- New member mentorship. I feel if a new member could be paired with a veteran vendor it would benefit all involved. The new members could go to their mentor with general questions, freeing up the office staff.

Poll Results

How should the French Market’s history be preserved?

- Traditional arts/ crafts demonstrations
- Earned media in local and national media
- Programs for kids
- Oral histories coupled with available and newly updated video documentary available through the appropriate digital and/or local archive
- Programming of interest to both locals and tourists
- In person walking tours with a guide
- Easily accessible walking tours, any good signs (curated by locals)
- Food and culture demonstrations
- Museum experiences
- Interactive kiosks/stations public can access
- Culturally appropriate live performances
- Walking tour apps
- Providing opportunity for vendors
- Continual programming lead by community
- Exhibits of artwork
- By creating an affordable fresh food and local craft market.
- By returning as a food market
- Preserved and shared through documentation
- Scannable plaques
- Storytelling opportunities from different cultures.
Appendix

How can we make the French Market feel safe and clean?

- Can we remove those enormous electrical wires towers running along the River?
- Ditto on maintained restrooms creative and cohesive design/look of vendors stalls
- First Aid station
- More walkable and activated surrounding streets, with more activity later in the day
- Increased security, including NOPD officer(s) working a detail shift.
- Continually dedicated maintenance teams who fix all problems no matter how small
- Law enforcement officer
- ACTIVE security guards that walk around. Not passive grounds patrol
- More security officers enforcing
- Build on COVID habits which people are used to.
- More security personnel
- More maintenance in general
- Better security by post certified LEOs.
- We need maintained restrooms
- Renovate the bathrooms
- Lighting
- Signage directing customers to and through the market

What does equity at the French Market mean and look like to you?

- Living wages for all employees
- Using data and community to build economic tourism and address gaps. I’m hiring, pay wages and support ways all can access regardless of income
- Culture bearers get paid at a life sustaining rate
- FM Corporation organizational and hiring practices should be equitable and board and staff reflect inclusivity.
- Opportunities for new vendors
- Leadership that is demographically representative of the city population
- Culture bearers are paid and benefit from their contributions
- More unique, locally created art vendors.
- Diverse vendors, sprinkled with interactive experiences that highlight NO culture
- The Market is one of the most equitable spaces in the city. ANYONE can participate and attend.
- Black people from NOLA are employed and involved at all levels.
- Fair opportunity for new vendors maybe who are more locally focused
- Maintain website
- Equity = that you are prioritizing locals and residents, not just tourists
- Campaigns similar to those for COVID-19. Engaging popular artists to make digital messages “What we do here” and “We don’t do that here!”

What is your relationship to the French Market?

- FQ Resident
- New Orleans resident
- Visitor
- Shopper
- I live in the French Quarter full time
- Vendor/neighbor
- Consumer, advocate
- Patron
- N/A
- Vendor
- User
- Consultant
- Consultant
- I live on Decatur and overlook it from my bedroom window
- Employee
- Past programming partner
- Cultural Promoter/Producer
- Tenant
- Small food business support
- Vendor since 1989
- Vendor
- Neighbor and patron
- Customer
- Consultant
- Vendor and Pres vendor comm.
- Lifelong visitor and patron
- Consultant
- Consultant
Appendix

- I visit the French Market usually with guests from out of town, also am on the board of Market Umbrella...we ran a market there.
- Neighbor
- Engagement Facilitator
- Nola Resident; parent of two children who attend Homer Plessy nearby.
- Consultant
- Grew up in the French Quarter when the Market was very different than it is today. Have experienced and been a part of the evolution
- Cultural advocate and researcher
- Vendor
- Vendor
- Vendor
- New Orleans resident
- I'm on their mailing list
- Neighborhood Resident
- Vendor
- Vendor
- Home owner in the French Quarter
- French Quarter Business Association
- I live in Bywater and am president of Neighbors First for Bywater. I would use the French Mkt again with certain improvements.
- Board Member
- Vendor
- Vendor
- Vendor
- Future vendor
- Hopeful vendor
- Vendor
- Community Stakeholder
- I'm a New Orleans native?
- Vendor
- Tour guide
- Local restaurateur
- Vendor/Author
- Musician and buyer
- Local Resident
- Vendor since 1986
- Tour operator/ partnerships with businesses
- 38 year vendor
- Vendor, on vendor committee since it started
- Vendor
- Vendor
- Culture Bearer in Literary Arts
- Customer, French Quarter resident
- Resident of New Orleans
- Consultant
- Thought I had already registered. Flea Mkt. Vendor since Jan. 1981!!!
Stakeholders offered the following feedback after reviewing preliminary recommendations for each category:

Policy
- Provide increased support for janitorial staff and regular, deep cleaning of bathrooms and facilities
- Estate clear policies and coordination needed for vendor loading and parking
- Incentivize local artists to be vendors by offering rent subsidies for local artist and artisan vendors who hand-make their products.
- Designate a specific area for local handmade crafts in the market, that is separate from other products so customers know where to find them.
- Vendor management software and apps work for younger vendors but older vendors should be able to access the same information by calling or talking to FMC staff in person.
- Provide better outreach and educational opportunities for local youth
- Increase representation of Black community.
- Revisit what was working historically at the French Market.
- The current Non-Interference & Peaceful Environment policy should be revised. The current policy suggests that vendors can not engage with people who pass by their booths. “I sell books and need to be able to tell people about my products.”
- Provide better security and management of public nuisances such as “Uncle Sam” character.
- The French Market Farmers and Flea market should be a pin on google maps.
- Consider changing the name of the flea market to “International Market.”
- Equity and compassion should be the trademark of support provided to current and future vendors.

Programs
- Pop-ups are not new at French Market. Establishing a regular rhythm for pop-ups will increase public awareness about them.
- The pop-ups make space for hot new products and the programming for adults and children is very refreshing!
- How does licensing work for pop-up vendors?
- Night Market should be facilitated by a curator rather than a manager.
- The idea of nighttime activity is great if marketing is strong and magnetic.
- Include vendor-only bathrooms.
- Youth Markets can highlight local Black youth art.
- Use social media to attract better food pop-ups
- Use music to attract and pull people through the market spaces.

Place
There was a lot of excitement around the proposed place-based improvements, especially at the restrooms, FMC offices, and exterior plaza. Many stakeholders emphasized a desire to preserve the French Market’s history while building on its character to improve it. Some vendors and tenants expressed concern that the proposed construction projects may disrupt current market operations.

Feedback on short-term improvements at the French Market sheds included:
- Designate designated parking and loading areas for vendors and customers.
- Designate loading hours at French Market Place.
- Provide additional ATMs on site.
- Install industrial fans to circulate air better
• Have Security/Police Officers posted at entrances
• Provide a stage with built-in sound & entertainment infrastructure
• Stream live video feed of market activity
• Hire French Market artists to paint murals and social media tags at stall grids.
• Provide on-site storage for vendors.
• Address roof leaks and sewer back-up issues at existing sheds.
• Work with DPW to address traffic, pedestrian, parking, and loading patterns at proposed Barracks St. “transportation hub.”

Feedback on medium-term improvements at the French Market sheds included:
• Create more green spaces with landscaping
• Offer wi-fi and better phone service for vendors and tourists.
• Allow vendors to operate the wind-screens and proposed garage doors.
• Make the entrances more attractive for vendors
• Provide easily portable set ups for pop-up vendors.
• Provide rain-cover around vendors.
• Create destinations and landmarks near vendors.
• Consult with festival and event planners when developing multi-purpose stage and platform.

Feedback on long-term improvements at the French Market sheds included:
• Increase shed heights to accommodate large trailers for unloading
• We like that the existing vendor spaces are not changing and that the improvements are focused at the exterior plaza to attract more people.
• Design a retractable roof at the new shed instead of a permanent roof.
• Consider designing an interactive water feature or fountain within the river mural, rather than a splash pad.
• Consider closing off Decatur St. @ French Market Place to accommodate the same kind of activity that happens in Jackson Square. “I love closing off the first block of French Market Place - it’s been really successful.”
Bathrooms at the French Market
Findings about plumbing, public toilets and showers

Research findings:

An initial search into public hygiene facilities has yielded various structures and operating models, all of which present opportunities for addressing the FMC’s desire to support its vendors, customers, and the surrounding community.

Cities, towns, municipalities and non-profit organizations, alone and in partnership, have established public hygiene facilities in response to the growing communities of people who are living in poverty without access to proper bathing facilities, homeless people living in crowded shelters, and/or people who are homeless, living unsheltered. These “hygiene centers” range from simple shower facilities to “full-service” facilities with restrooms, shower stalls, lockers, laundry machines, hygiene kits, clothing exchanges, and social and health services. There is no one-model-fits-all approach. The physical structures and operating models vary, reflecting unique community need, resources, and capacity of the operating entities.

The FMC is exploring the possibility of creating public hygiene facilities to meet the needs of multiple communities: vendors, customers, homeless, unsheltered, community, and the general public. This broad population has diverse needs, cultural norms, distinct expectations, and strong feelings about appropriate and fair use of public space. The public hygiene centers that are most successful have engaged in public dialogue to identify concerns, explore models, articulate beneficial services and functions, and allow for community buy-in. The broad brush of multi-use waterworks include:

1. Targeted public showers for the unsheltered (homeless).
2. Vendor hygiene and religious rituals: In addition to vendors who may shower, just as an employee who showers at the beginning or end of a shift; it is particularly important to address the religious needs of vendors (especially regards to a significant number of muslim vendors who’d use showers to perform Wudu, in advance of prayer). To get a sense of what is meant by this, view this quick video.
3. Vendor kitchen needs: During long stretches of vending, it is a reasonable request for vendors to a) not eat at their stalls, and b) wash utensils and dishes in a kitchen space designated for vendors.
4. General public enjoyment of a fountain to provide families with a place to gather. A good example of such a public fountain can be viewed in this short video outside Union Station (Denver, CO).

It is important to note that public restrooms are insufficient to address the full scope of public hygiene. When used for functions other than designed, public restrooms are open to abuse and disrepair.
1. Showers for the Unsheltered: There are various models and issues to consider with regards to providing the unsheltered with the dignity of showers:

To consider:

- Use
  - Customers, Homeless/unsheltered, community, other
  - ADA requirements
  - Storage
  - Religious rituals
  - Laundry
  - Materials
  - Social and health services

- Location
  - Interfere with market
  - Ease of access
  - People gathering
  - Water & electrical access

- Operations
  - Management
  - Staffing
  - Hours
  - Services

- Materials
  - Funding
  - Partnerships

- Safety, i.e.,
  - Ease of cleaning
  - Durability
  - Solar powering

- Potential Conflicts:
  - Cultural norms of diverse populations
  - Gathering of people
  - Neighbors
  - Cleanliness
  - Illegal activity (drug use, prostitution, indecency, theft)

Physical structures:

Mobile unit - https://www.thinkdignity.org/mod-squad-fresh-start-showers
Open Platform model -
LavaMae*: https://lavamaex.org/who-we-are
LavaMae* is a non-profit that specializes in training communities worldwide to bring our programs to their unhoused neighbors. While we continue to provide local services, our focus is on offering—for FREE—consulting and in-depth toolkits. These programs include mobile showers, Pop-Up Care Villages, and DIY handwashing stations that expand access to hygiene and other critical services.

Comparative Operating Models:

- Government - nonprofit:
  - Skid Row ReFresh Spot, Los Angeles, Fixed long-term location. https://www.lahsa.org/news?article=760-a-safe-space-for-the-skid-row-community-re-opens. The ReFresh Spot offers a space for the Skid Row community to access showers, restrooms, laundry, phone charging and drinking water. It is a public facility open 24/7 to anyone in the community. Much-needed supplies are also distributed, including: hygiene and wound care kits, socks, undergarments, overdose prevention kits, pet supplies and more. The ReFresh Spot is a collaborative project operated by Homeless Health Care Los Angeles with funding from the City of Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti and Los Angeles Homeless Services Authority.

- Non-profit run:
  - Think Dignity, San Diego - Mobile Unit
Fresh Start Showers is a 2-shower mobile trailer that provides access to safe shower facilities in various communities throughout the County. Think Dignity pairs with hairstylists, barbers, social service providers and more, to create a holistic experience for our participants.

- Duwara Consciousness Foundation, San Diego. Mobile Unit
- ShowerUp, Nashville, TN & elsewhere. Mobile Unit with fixed locations, set times

- Non-profit / Volunteer run:
  - Hygiene 4All, Portland, Fixed location, design and run by homeless people and volunteers. Hygiene Program offers 6pm to midnight access to two port-o-potties and a shower trailer for all Portlanders. Ambassadors ensure they are cleaned after each use. We also enhance community health by providing an exchange of soiled bedding for clean; a clothing swap; and an offering of personal, menstrual/moontime hygiene, and first-aid kits.

- Non-profit partnership:
  - Human Services Campus, Phoenix, AZ. The Human Services Campus, Inc. owns, operates and collaborates with partner-tenants to provide complementary, holistic services, all located on our 13-acre campus. HSC has purchased and installed a shower trailer with 12 private shower stalls and launched a three-times-a-week shower program for individuals experiencing homelessness on the 13-acre campus near downtown Phoenix. Clients are able to take 10-minute showers from 8-10 a.m. every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. Towels, washcloths, and hygiene products are provided.

- Public-private partnership: Standard Textile and 4 non-profits
  - Standard Textile Co., Inc., a global leader in the healthcare and hospitality textile markets, announces today it is launching a national program to combat homelessness. The company is partnering with four non-profit organizations across the United States that provide mobile shower services to people living either on the streets or in insufficient housing, with a goal of supporting 80,000 showers by the end of 2021.

To contact:

Think Dignity, San Diego
Phone: (619) 537-8736
thinkdignity@gmail.com

LavaMae, San Francisco
Phone: (415) 872-6950
2. Vendor hygiene and Wudu: To accommodate the sizable number of Muslim vendors whose religious tenants require prayers (5-times daily) to conduct Wudu (a simple bathing ritual), consider this into any proposed new plumbing for the FMC.

At the core of the French Market’s brand is its historical role as a convenor of different cultures engaged in commerce. Accounts from the late 19th century describe how Sicilians, French, Croatian, Creoles and African American, Irish and First Nation vendors congregate beneath the sheds. It has always been a place that trades on competition and intercultural competencies. Today, visitors also experience this multicultural marketplace. Particularly noticeable is the role of flea market vendors whose religious devotion (to Islam). How better to address their needs (as vendors) but to accommodate their requests for facilities to conduct Wudu (a simple bathing ritual best conducted in a seated shower/faucet — not unlike that which is common in Japanese public baths). This video provides a useful introduction to Wudu, just as this schematic guide is useful to understand the modular installation.

3. Vendor kitchen and sinks: To help vendors clean dishes and utensils in a separate kitchen space (away from the public toilets).

This is a reasonable vendor request. The development of a simple vendor utility sink and kitchen space may encourage vendors to a) not eat at their stalls, and/or at least b) wash utensils and tupperware in a kitchen space designated for vendors. At present, vendors not only eat at their stalls but also interact with the general public amidst dirty dishes. If the FMC were to build out a separate utility sink and counter for vendors to eat lunch and clean dishes, it would help staff to locate the source of ongoing maintenance challenges with public restrooms being used for needs far beyond their original intentions.

4. Fountains for the general public: Consider building a simple public fountain to provide families with a place to gather, alongside the other plumbing projects being planned.

The 1990 PPS study claims that the French Market has “very few internal landmarks to orient shoppers.” Considering the market’s linear design (running alongside the River), the shopper experience would be greatly improved if there were notable landmarks to slow down progress through the market, and to serve as meeting points for all. There are very few recognizable landmarks. Why not a fountain in/near where the two open sheds meet? With the warm and sticky climate, a fountain allows families to cool off and provides visitors with an experience for selfies and orientation. A good example of one such public fountain can be viewed in this short video at Union Station (Denver, CO). Success depends upon the usefulness of the fountain for shoppers, simple design and maintenance. This particular fountain in Denver is where families congregate and to recover from shopping, etc.